The Engineers of Today Build the Highways of Tomorrow

Liberty High School Bedford, Virginia

The Heritage

Nineteen Hundred Sixty-Nine
Volume Five

Students, as Engineers, Build Towards Goals

Stop! Construction Ahead.

The student of Liberty High is building. He is constructing his life, the tradition of the school, his future. His life is regulated by the pattern: 8:45-3:07, five days a week, September through June. Tradition springs from little things that have become important. The future depends upon dreams for design.

The days are like highways. There are miles of smooth pavement and a few stretches in need of repair. Each road goes somewhere and the days merge into months and the months become a year. October—time is spent in classrooms, but the yells from the football field seem more important than math. December—only a countdown period till vacation. May—there is the smell of the class picnic and the promise of summer freedom. Only a quick thought and on to other places. The road leads through projects and long study periods when it is hard to believe anything matters but sleep. Then the days come quickly, too full to be understood. Soon there will be a slow period with time to breathe, wonder, worry, enjoy.

Using the Tools Practice and Participation

"I am a stranger here. The halls overflow with people I don't know; the locker will not open." Loneliness springs up in every student at one time in his life at Liberty. He wants to know that he is more than a number. His confidence grows as he succeeds on the basketball court, in the classroom, with the girl in history class. His loneliness has been a tool to help form an important section of his character.

Touchdown! The student, forgetting his coat which just fell under the bleachers, jumps to his feet. School pride gives him a reason for supporting a cause. His feet may freeze, but caring becomes important to him.

An atom is the smallest particle of an element; William Shakespeare was born in 1564; necessities for the student to memorize fill his mind. His head spins in six directions, a different one for every class. He adjusts, logic replaces confusion, but dreams still leave cobweb traces.

There will be many erasures and new calculations in this design, but somewhere a definite direction will be plotted and the course for the future will be laid. To find this spot the student must use the tools of knowledge, practice, and spirit that make possible a unique design.

Each Month Is a Part of a Master-Plan

Summer thoughts still lingered in the student's mind as the first day of school rapidly approached. When the day became a reality, each student contained within himself anxieties, hopes, new determinations and dreads. All these feelings were momentarily pushed aside when he encountered the familiar buildings and walkways once again. The quiet, deserted hallways were suddenly overflowing with life. The first bell rang and everyone crowded through the doors of the school auditorium. There, sitting in the hot assembly, each person strained to hear his name called from the lists which seemed never ending.

An effigy of the rival team member burned on the bonfire at the Homecoming pep rally, while spectators looked on with excitement and cries of encouragement. The whistle blew, there was the kickoff for the football game. Many onlookers cheered in ecstasy as the Liberty team recovered a fumbled then cried in anguish as the opposition pushed back a goal-line stand.

Such was the excitement of September and October, when the crisp, cool weather made the students just "want to be doing something."

Each Dance, Each Test, Comprises the Schedule

When the footballs had hit the hard field for the last time in early November, school thoughts turned from fall to winter plans. People hurried a little faster to classes which took them out-of-doors, and lockers bulged with parkas and heavy coats. Thanksgiving holiday was a welcome relief to students faced with term papers, and after the long weekend, everyone was studying weather forecasts for signs of snow. To the dismay of Liberty High, the sky seemed to promise clear roads until Christmas. School life centered around the first basketball games and the heavy pre-exam schedules.

The school was bustling with diverse activity. Many seniors had been accepted by various colleges through the Early Applications Program, but there were many more in the class who were still applying to institutes of higher education. Juniors finally had the opportunity to organize and decide upon rings and sophomores were busy creating original and distinct homerooms for the Christmas decorations contest. Christmas vacation arrived almost before anyone realized it and, for the Seniors, their final year was fast reaching its completion.

The Christmas bulletin board in Mr. Brown's tenth grade homeroom helped the class win first place in the annual contest.

Each Activity Is a Step Toward an Ideal

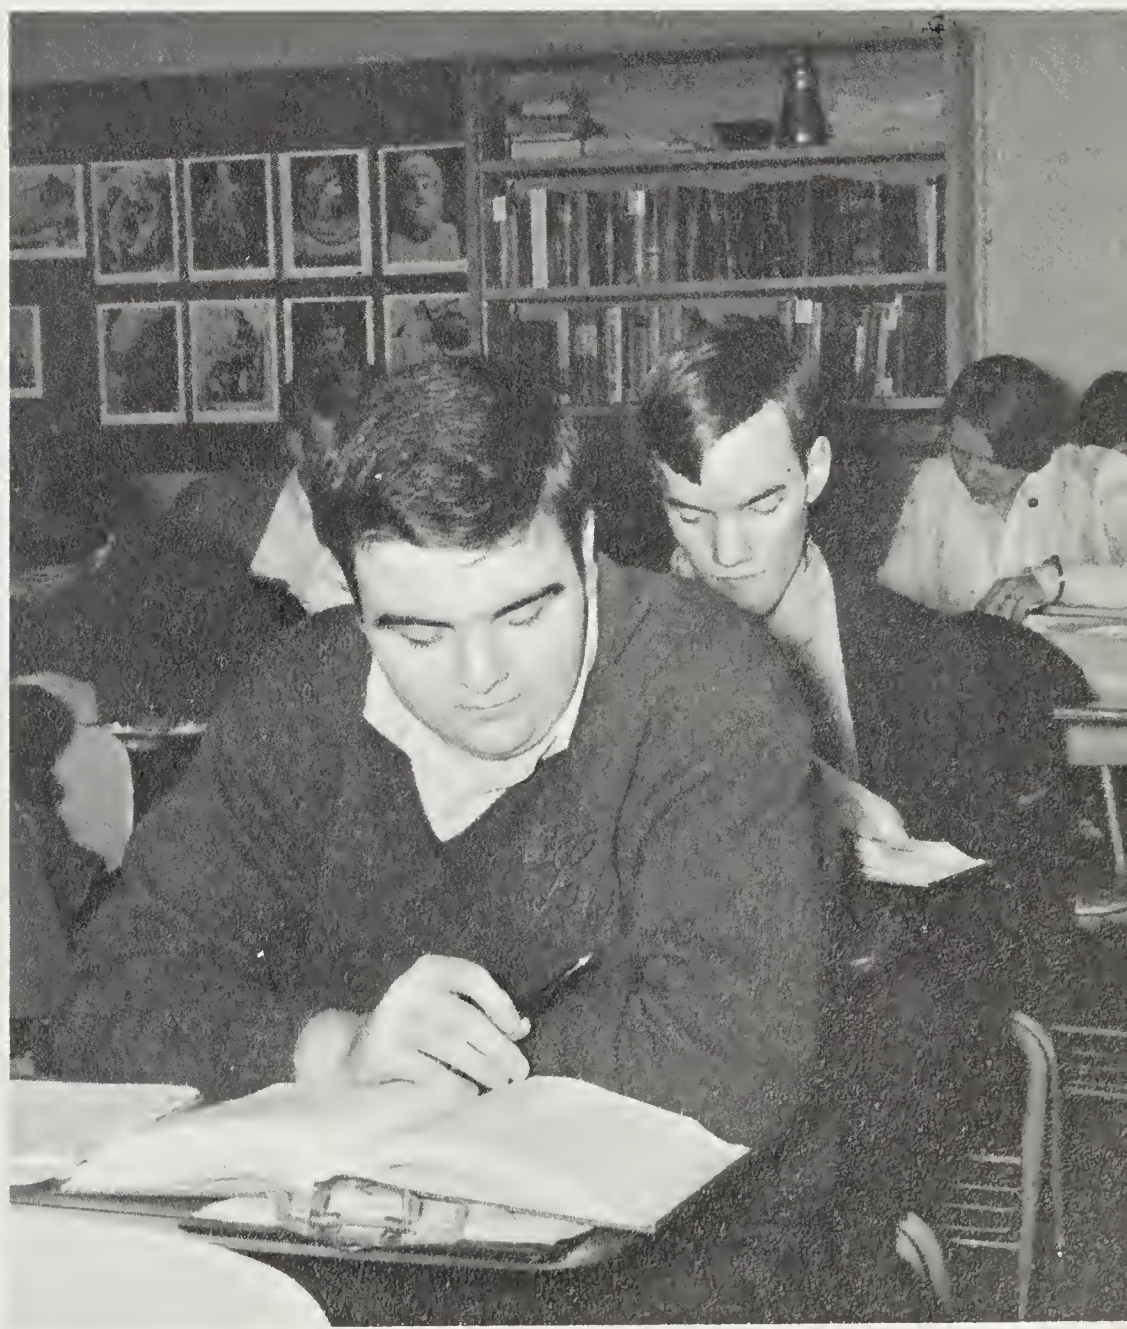

Doris Lee proudly shows her class ring to Barbara Welch who is awaiting the arrival of her own ring.

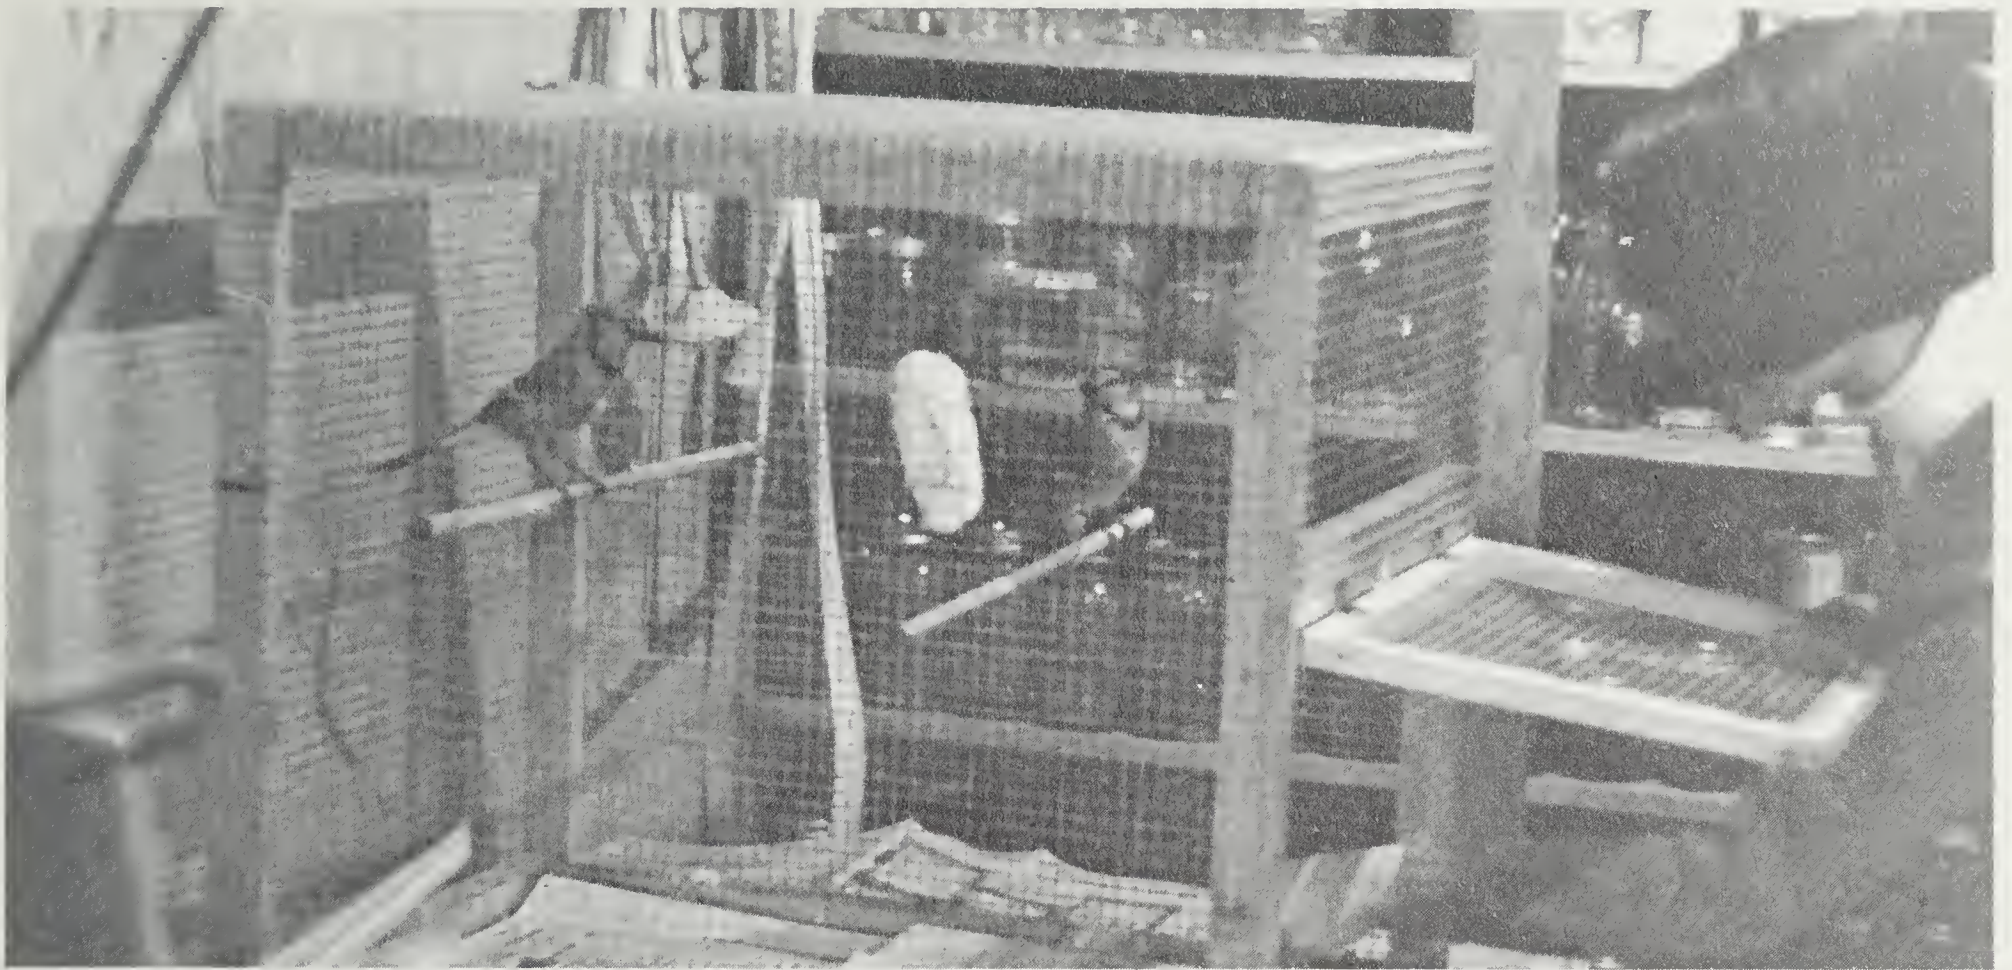

Between the snowdrifts and exams, the highway twisted throughout the long month of January and into the lace trimmed expanse of February. Tension and frustrations were the ever-present hitch-hikers with each student as he traveled the sixteen days from his return to school after Christmas break until the closing of the last blue book. During the four day break, the aspects of ordinary life established themselves along route LHS.

The new semester had one focal point, the April evaluation; the teachers and students felt the necessity and pressure to excel. The end of January came and the shortest month arrived in a whirl of increased academics and the district basketball tournament. Student life was a constant freeway with the numerous cloverleaves of early spring term papers, the end of winter sports, and the passageways of the interim season. Snow, ice, and rain seemed to have become permanent parts of the scenery, fall had become a series of rapidly dimming memories, and spring was still an undefined mass of expectations and promises.

Sherry Oliver continues experimentation on her award-winning Science Fair project.

Destination Attained with Arrival of Goals

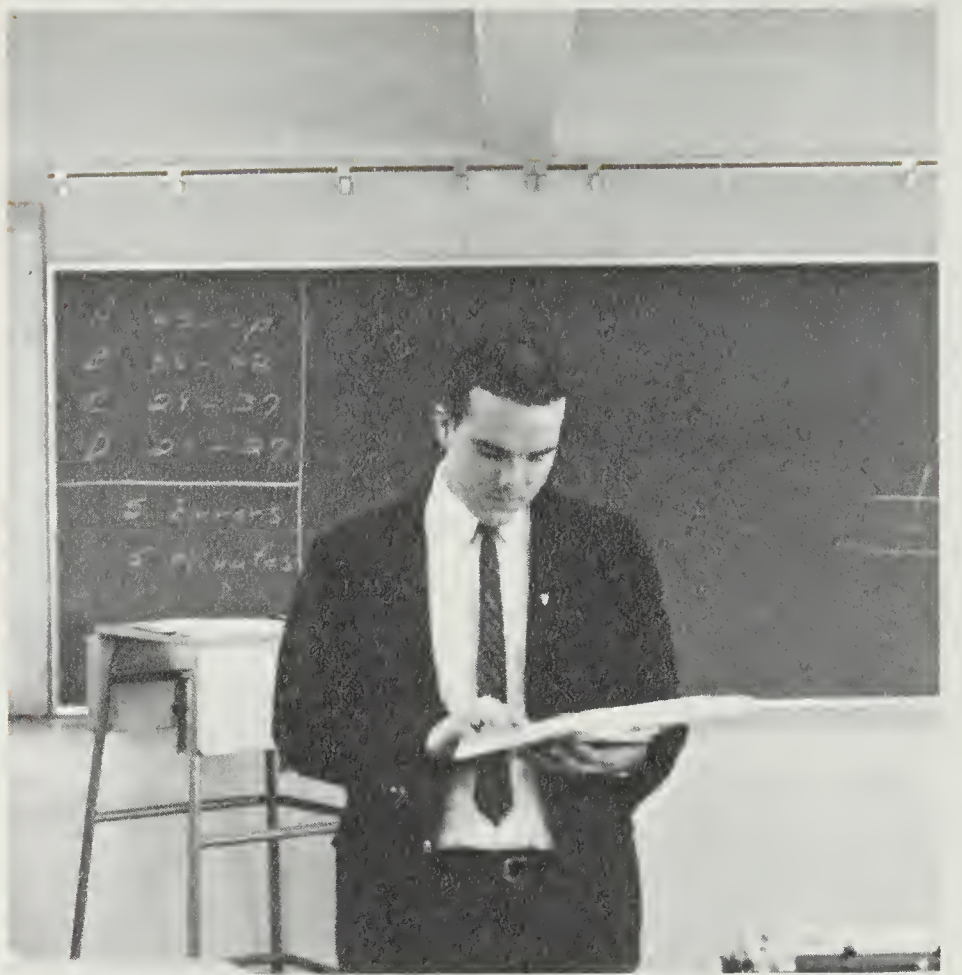

Springtime reveals that Liberty students enjoy the outdoors.

The Spring of 1969 was for seniors, lovers, dreamers, and anyone who felt like the three preceding groups. After a winter filled with rain and cloudy skies, the days of March, April, May, and June rushed by in a splendor. Even the drizzling days spoke of flowers instead of cold pills, of freedom instead of confinement.

College acceptances came pouring into the guidance offices during March and April and seniors could at last breathe again. The prom survived in the memories of Juniors and Seniors as dim lights and the smell of roses with all the tears and tensions that had made it a reality, pushed somewhere into the background. The track, tennis court, baseball field, and golf course were scenes of triumph and disappointment for the spring sports at Liberty. Boys on the teams had school and state records on their mind and not English literature.

And at the end of all the planning came graduation. This was the final touch to plans which encompassed all the activities that had become a part of Liberty's history in the last five years. The months which made 1968-1969 were over and students were left with their blueprints either completed or changed.

Administration Heads

School Activities

"May I have your attention, please." This confused sentence made every student realize that it was time for school to start. The administration did innumerable jobs from processing the educational system paper work to solving the problems of the never-ending line of students who wandered in and out of the office between classes. The principal, Mr. William Lee, regulated the evaluation program by sending out memos and setting up committees. The two assistant principals, Mr. Paul Sherman and Mr. Otis Caldwell, worked with student problems and co-ordinated student activities. Mr. Forrest Frazier had the delicate job of keeping the school system running in time to the changes which occurred throughout the year.

More activities were possible in the school through the co-operation of student government and the administration. Each program presented by the SCA was reviewed by the administration. Some of the ideas passed while others were rejected. However, in every case it was only after careful review or discovery of a restraining rule that an answer was given.

Counselors Strengthen Future Plans

Mr. Oglesby checks area college catalogues for various seniors.

Each Liberty student wonders, "What will I do when I finish high school? Where do I go from here?" The guidance department starts early in the eighth grade to make sure a student will have all the required courses to fulfill his plans. Even before he is out of his elementary school, Liberty attempts to make him aware of what he must take in high school and the electives that are available to him.

Cries of ecstasy and moans of despair fill the corridors on the first day as students receive their schedule cards. The guidance office is swamped by people wanting to change from one class to another. The guidance counselors urge the students not to change classes as a result of first day impressions. The student's record and his plans for post-graduate activities are considered before the counselors confirm any changes.

Standardized test scores flooded the office and students were confused by rumors of their significance. The guidance workers reassured each participant that although the scores were important, they were not final signals of destiny.

Spark Imagination

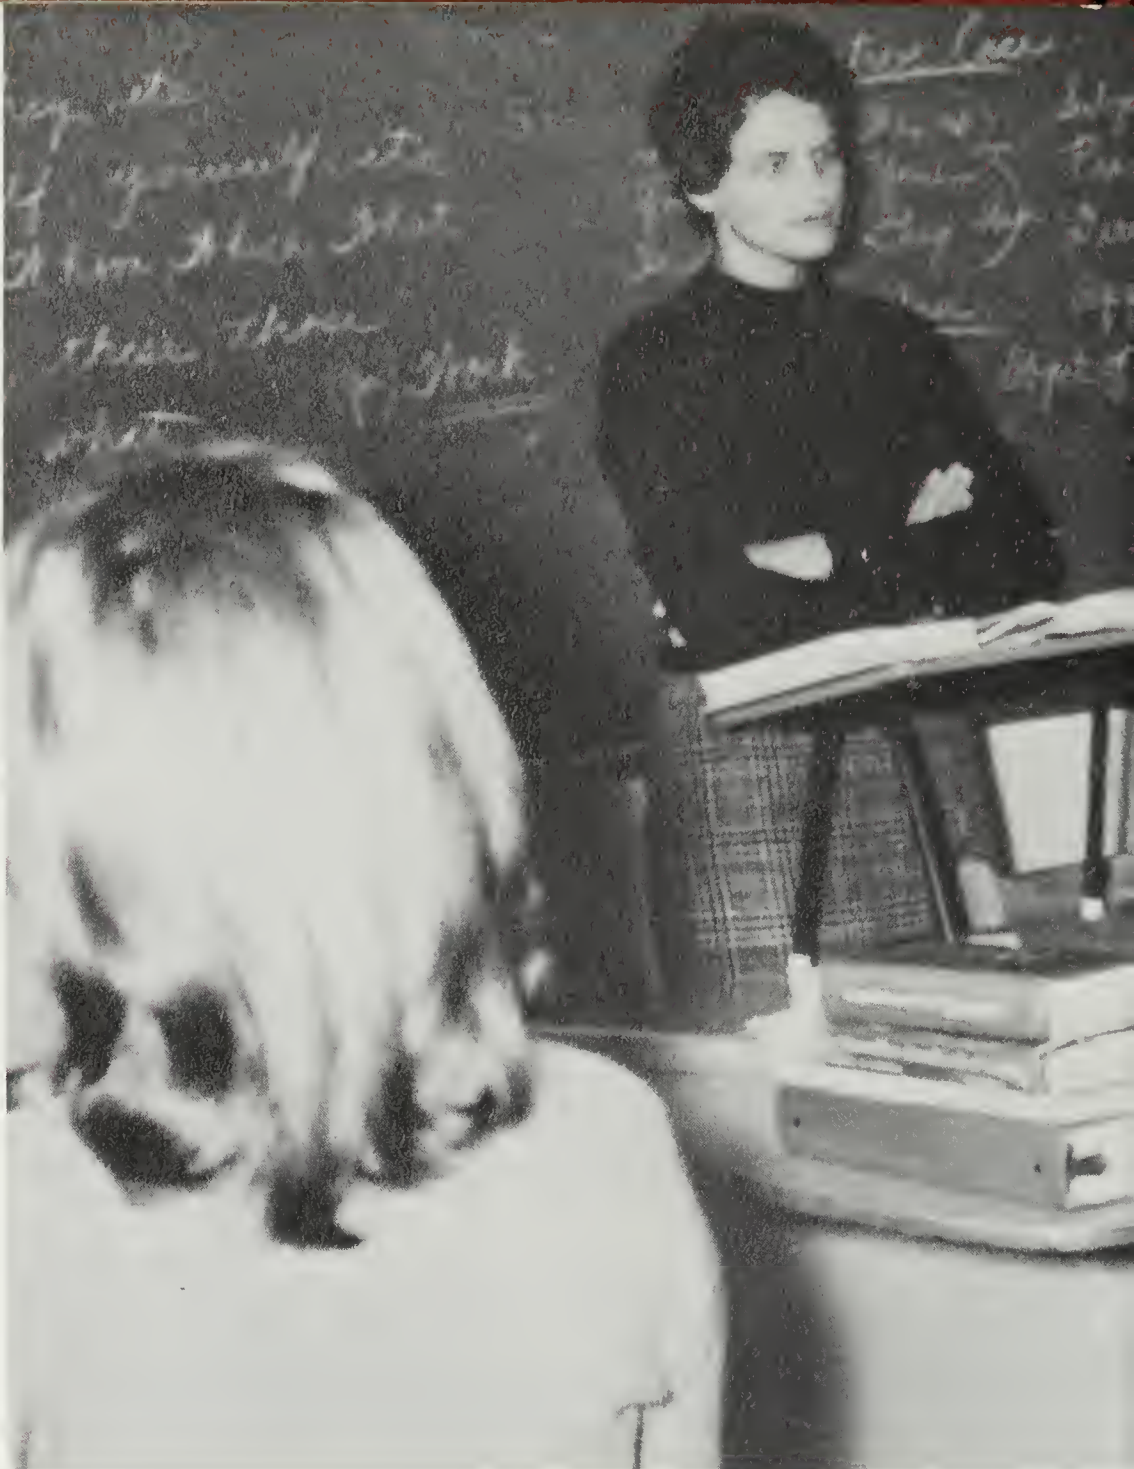

Dear Robin: Just look! Your mom and I are on the same page! I have enjoyed teaching you this year, and I hope you have gotten something worthwhile from the class besides laughter!

Be a good girl, and I shall be thinking of you as the

The students of Liberty speak English, and for at least one period each day, they speak it correctly. In order to interest so many people, it was necessary for the English teachers to adopt new methods. If the student were to adjust to college classes or on-the-job problems in English, no longer could there be dull grammar drill to fill a period.

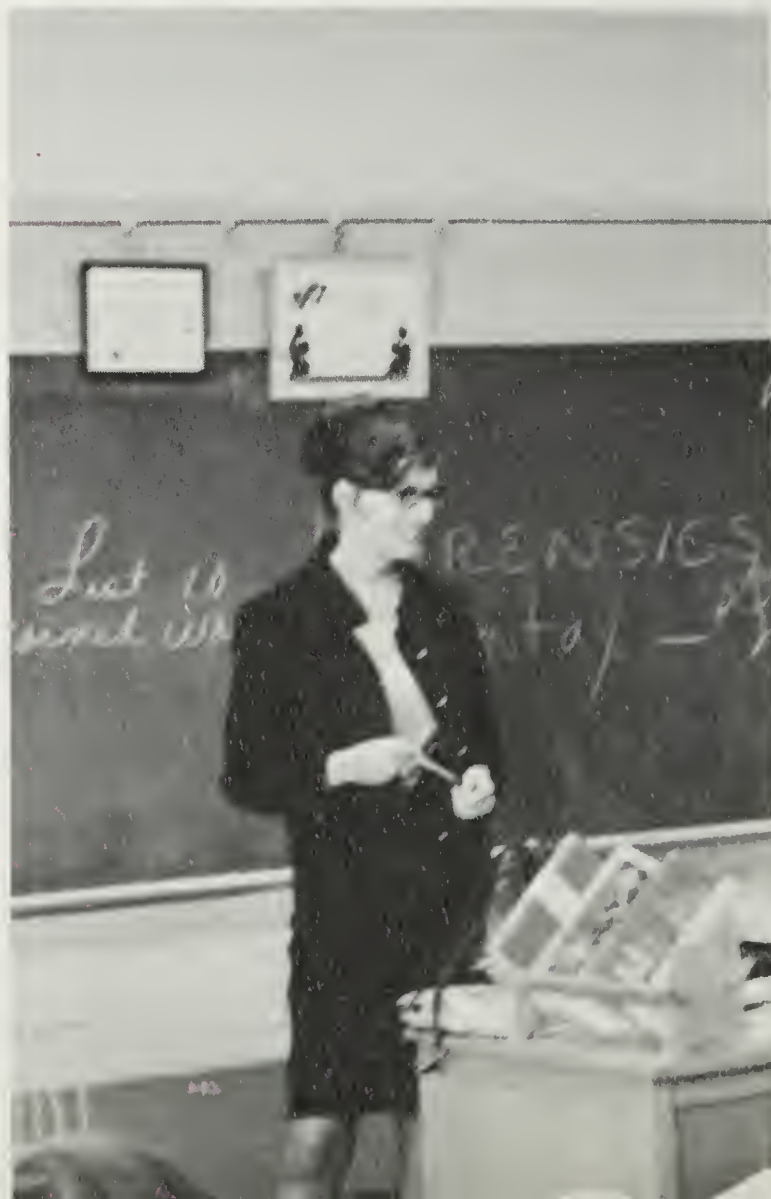

Communication! This was the key word of the required classes and of the English electives of speech, drama, and advanced grammar and composition. Liberty students discovered that the world would not accept a mumbled answer in response to a question. The scientific trend of society made it necessary to stress concise, logical thinking.

Imagination, however, was not pushed aside. If a student wanted to write about green roses and purple elephants, his work was not discouraged. But he may have had to explain his choice of subject. In the English department, the creative student found new ways to express his emotions. Each teacher developed phrasing and continuity in student work and encouraged the pupil to participate in forensics and essay contests. The growth of a student's understanding of life was the goal of each classroom discussion. If man were to continue to progress, it was clear that he must know what has come before in the philosophy concerning life.

The beginning of the year found that a few "aint's" and "wanta's" had crept into the language of the student. Teachers provided theme work and conversation in class to overcome this problem. The activities of Forensics Week, held in October, were to encourage students to read the meaning between the lines of prose and poetry selections.

Many of the young teachers, new to the department, offered new interpretations to the literature selections. The English department also found that it needed some of the inventions of modern technology. Overhead projectors and closed-circuit television sets crowded the English rooms making them seem more like laboratories than classrooms. English became a tool through which history, math, and science courses were better understood. English, no longer a course in mere rules and regulations, was now a true guide to understanding.

Mrs. Walker seems astonished by the vocabulary used by one of her students.

Come Alive for Foreign Language Students

The French Class recites nouns from their lesson with the help of Mr. Sowell.

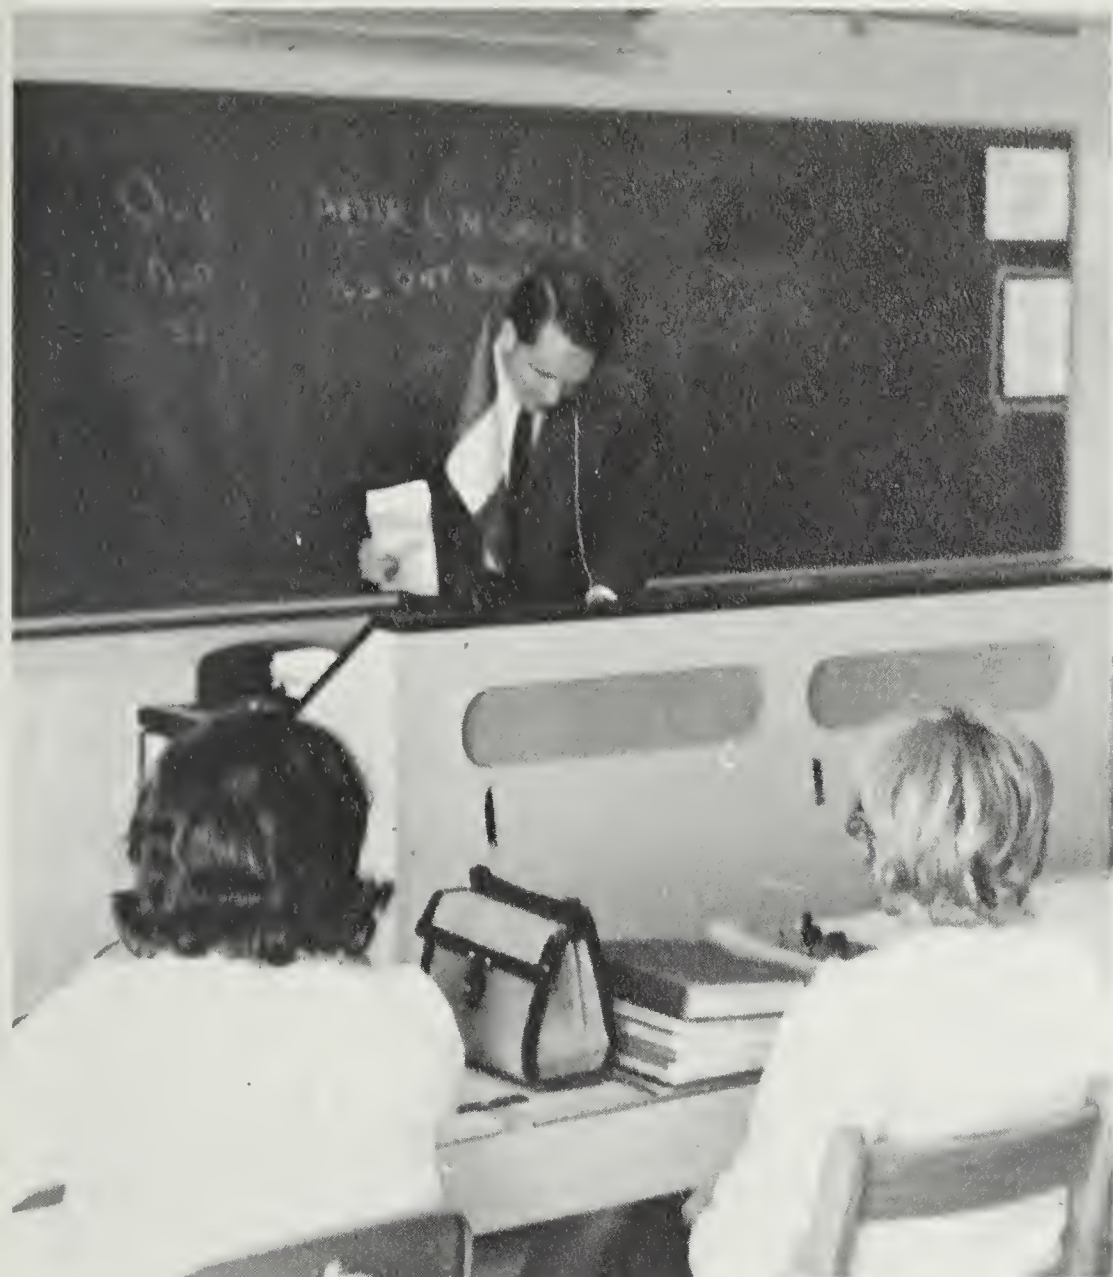

The world grows small. People who speak a different language will confront the student on the job or in college. He must be able to communicate in a language which he did not learn as a child. He must find the answer to conversational problems while in the language classes of Liberty. In the modern languages of French and Spanish, the plan of study for the first through third year classes, was to learn to communicate ideas, whole phrases in the language, and not to simply memorize vocabulary and rules. Interest in language became so intensified that Mrs. Owen had to teach all second year students in one period in order to make room for three Spanish I classes. Another French teacher was added to the staff to accommodate the number of students who requested the course.

To establish a background for any new language, to understand English, and to appreciate the value of Latin Literature: these were the objectives of Mrs. Stone's Latin classes. Although conversational Latin was not stressed, the ability to communicate in a different pattern benefited the student from first year to fourth year.

Whether a Liberty student spoke in Spanish, French, or Latin, the opportunity to think in a foreign language was given to any forward-looking student.

Curiosity is a necessity for the science department. The teacher must make the sleeping student aware that there is a world out there and that he needs to live in it. Science contributes to the life of the student as he applies the broad concepts he learns in the laboratory to the individual problems he faces in his job or in college. The technical way of life demands a background in science.

Mrs. Thaxton, who heads the department, values student participation in all essay contests, junior science and humanities symposium, the V.J.A.S. and science talent searches. She also makes available information on these extra projects to all science teachers. The county fair occupies much of the planning time of the department during the winter months.

The first non-credit course at Liberty was instituted under the science department guidance. The students who participated had completed two lab sciences with satisfactory grades and desired to gain a more extensive background in fields of science not taught at Liberty. There were no grades given in the class held after school. Learning solely for the sake of knowledge was the goal of each member. The teachers who led the program discovered that area colleges opened some of their scientific seminars to such classes. The students took advantage of both free courses and those that required a fee.

Students hastily take notes as Mr. Carlson continues his discussion in general science.

Science Makes Advances through Reasoning

Bedford County holds a leading position in the science programs for the state. The SOS Science Club, sponsored by the department, has produced regional, state, and national finalists; and the club was second in the state. Since the students realize the rewards in science participation, the science fairs grow each year. Local industry plays an important role by providing essay contests which offer scientific scholarships to the winners.

The Westinghouse Science Talent Search was given to students who showed an interest in science as a career. Even on college boards the student could take a science achievement test in the three major fields: biology, chemistry, and physics. Science courses were an involved system of lab reports and projects, calculations and long hours on routine jobs. But for the student, who found new ideas, it was worth it.

Math Is an Art of Comprehension

Keeping the pace in an ever increasingly technical world is the purpose of the Math Department. Solving algebraic equations, memorizing theorems and writing proofs, learning the relationship between sine and secant, these were problems with which the math students were faced daily. Math became more than simply knowing that two plus two equaled four; it became important to know why this was true. The complex web of mathematics clearly showed that it was necessary to make every progression tight without any weak threads. The system revised from last year was made even more interlocking.

In the Matharama, an annual project of the Math Department, the students had an opportunity to show their talents in displays and research papers. Student work that showed an unusual presentation or advanced calculations, was entered in the Science fair held in March and abstracts were sent to V.J.A.S.

Math was a course of participation. A student did not advance if he did not do a great amount of work outside of the math class. He learned through reports and projects that he could reason and experiment with ideas which he thought he could never even understand.

Students Discover That Knowledge

"The proper study of mankind is man." The Social Studies Department studies man in all of his various activities and, like man himself, the department studies many varied disciplines. History, government, geography, and economics are all included within the scope of the department.

History studies man's development from pre-historic times to the space age. Every event from the past has significant trends which have repeated themselves through the ages. The student firmly grounded in history is better equipped to function in a constantly changing world.

Modern man must be well-acquainted with the political events of his environment. Governmental structures, political philosophies, constitutional questions expose students to the political realities of the society which he must soon enter.

Economics is included in the Social Studies curriculum because the L.H.S. graduate will very soon be exposed to a world in which the successful citizen will be the person who is conversant with both the economic trends and efficient business procedure.

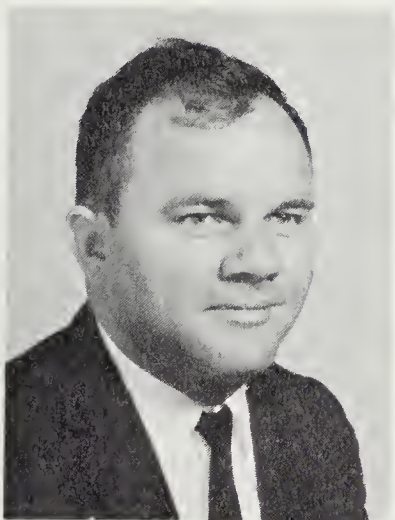

Finally, the student at Liberty becomes aware of his physical environment through the geography classes. The rivers, mountains, plains, which compose our nation, must be made familiar to the citizen. A knowledge of the physical world is vital to the concerned student.

Mrs. Mishoe explains to one of her students the correct method of setting up an eight column tabulation.

An automated world demands people trained in office procedures. Liberty equips young people to fill the positions which will continue to open as the metal-minds increase. The Business Department, in order to insure offices and research centers against incompetent workers, presents actual problems to the students.

The classroom situation, whether it is Typing I or Office Practice, emphasized the idea of precise and correct work. The accuracy of computers and the importance of correct figures was stressed to clarify the meaning of what men and women can do in the world of big or small business.

Many academically geared students participate in business classes in order to gain knowledge of economic trends and problems and to acquire the practical tool of typing or shorthand. The office practice classes, taught for two periods at a time, prepared the interested students in more advanced office work. The program is comprehensive enough to allow a girl to go directly from high school to a business career or to give the college bound student a background for more advanced business training.

Folk rock. Heavy rock. Op art. 1984. These form the culture of the youth of today. But what of the expressions man has made through the ages in art, music and the printed word? Where does the crude drawing on a cave fit in with complex wire shapes of today's art? What does Beethoven mean in a world where the Beatles are better known? What does Thoreau have to say to a protesting youth in the street? The answers to such questions are found in the Fine Arts Department of Liberty.

The student sees light and darkness as more than simply physical occurrences but as the composition of feelings. In art class he learns that the clear expression of emotion will distinguish a mere copy from a work that has value of itself. A passage of music has clearer tones to the student who understands why the composer wrote in that mood. Between the covers of books lies a world that only the carefully oriented student can understand. He needs constant help throughout the year in finding material for research and book reports. Every activity lends itself to the key word of the department which is appreciation.

"All right, three laps around the gym, and then to the locker room." — everyday words to the students of Liberty High. All students are required to complete three years of physical education in order to graduate. The teachers of the department believe in physical fitness and a knowledge of good health and safety practices. Students are instructed in the many phases of this knowledge and skill that combine to make a socially and mentally balanced person.

Students in the ninth grade take driver training for one semester and first aid during the second semester. All tenth grade girls are required to perform an original modern dance. Both boys and girls enjoy tumbling and gymnastics during the three years. The classes are also shown the rules and basic skills of soccer, basketball and volleyball. Field hockey was the new sport many eighth graders were exposed to. The girls can remember getting dirty faces from random swings of the sticks as they hit dusty ground. The physical fitness program improves school spirit because sportsmanship as well as skill is stressed in the classes.

As civilization progresses, there is a need for men trained in the fields of electronics, agriculture, and drafting. In the home with its many automatic gadgets, there is still a need for the homemaker to know how to unthaw the evening meal and, with the high cost of living, to make out a workable budget. The young person must learn responsibility on the highway through driver's education. The business world will welcome any young person who has also learned the responsibility of a job through distributive education. Study halls provide the student with an opportunity to learn productive use of free time.

The teachers who work within the vocational department are responsible for preparing students to find rewarding jobs in industry and for giving technical background to the students interested in engineering and home economics as a career.

Classes at Liberty which teach such practical methods find willing learners. There are no short-cuts in the achievement of goals in any vocation, and Liberty offers none.

The vocational curriculum teaches the development of practical skills rather than the mastering of theory. Students must achieve competence in such classes as electronics and agriculture. Competence of the D. E. department is achieved only through diligent practice and an eagerness to learn. The students at Liberty exhibit such an attitude.

Office and Library Staffs Work Efficiently

Mrs. Oglesby instructs Mrs. Pachuta about the typing of a library requisition form.

Miss Lois Delong and Mrs. Maria Long are busy calling students to the guidance office.

Mrs. Wilson checks with Mr. Wooldridge about last-minute plans for the Senior picnic.

Liberty would become a confused place if suddenly the staff disappeared. Who would fix lunch? Who would answer the telephone, keep the books, or help the confused student find his lost book? The havoc caused in the halls by hundreds of discarded papers, by enough prints on the windows to suit any FBI agent, and by light bulbs blown out in the darkest corridors, would go unchecked if the custodial staff didn't go alone behind the students and straighten things. The office staff is aided by student workers who deliver the many memos and listings that are prepared during the day. The students are also used in the lunchroom to collect money and wash dishes. These jobs relieve the school staff but it does mean that the staff must take time to explain the work to be done. Liberty could not function without the secretaries, maids, janitors and lunchroom workers. If they were away it would be a cold, confused, cluttered, and hungry way of existence.

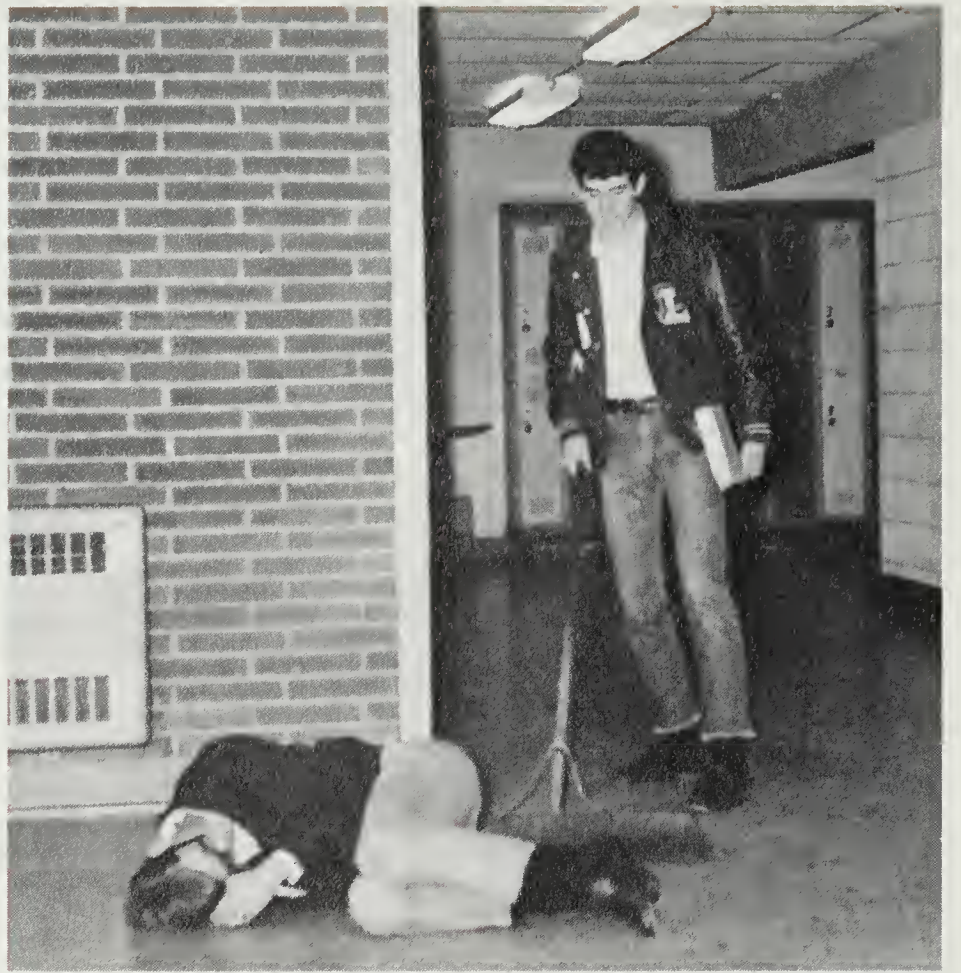

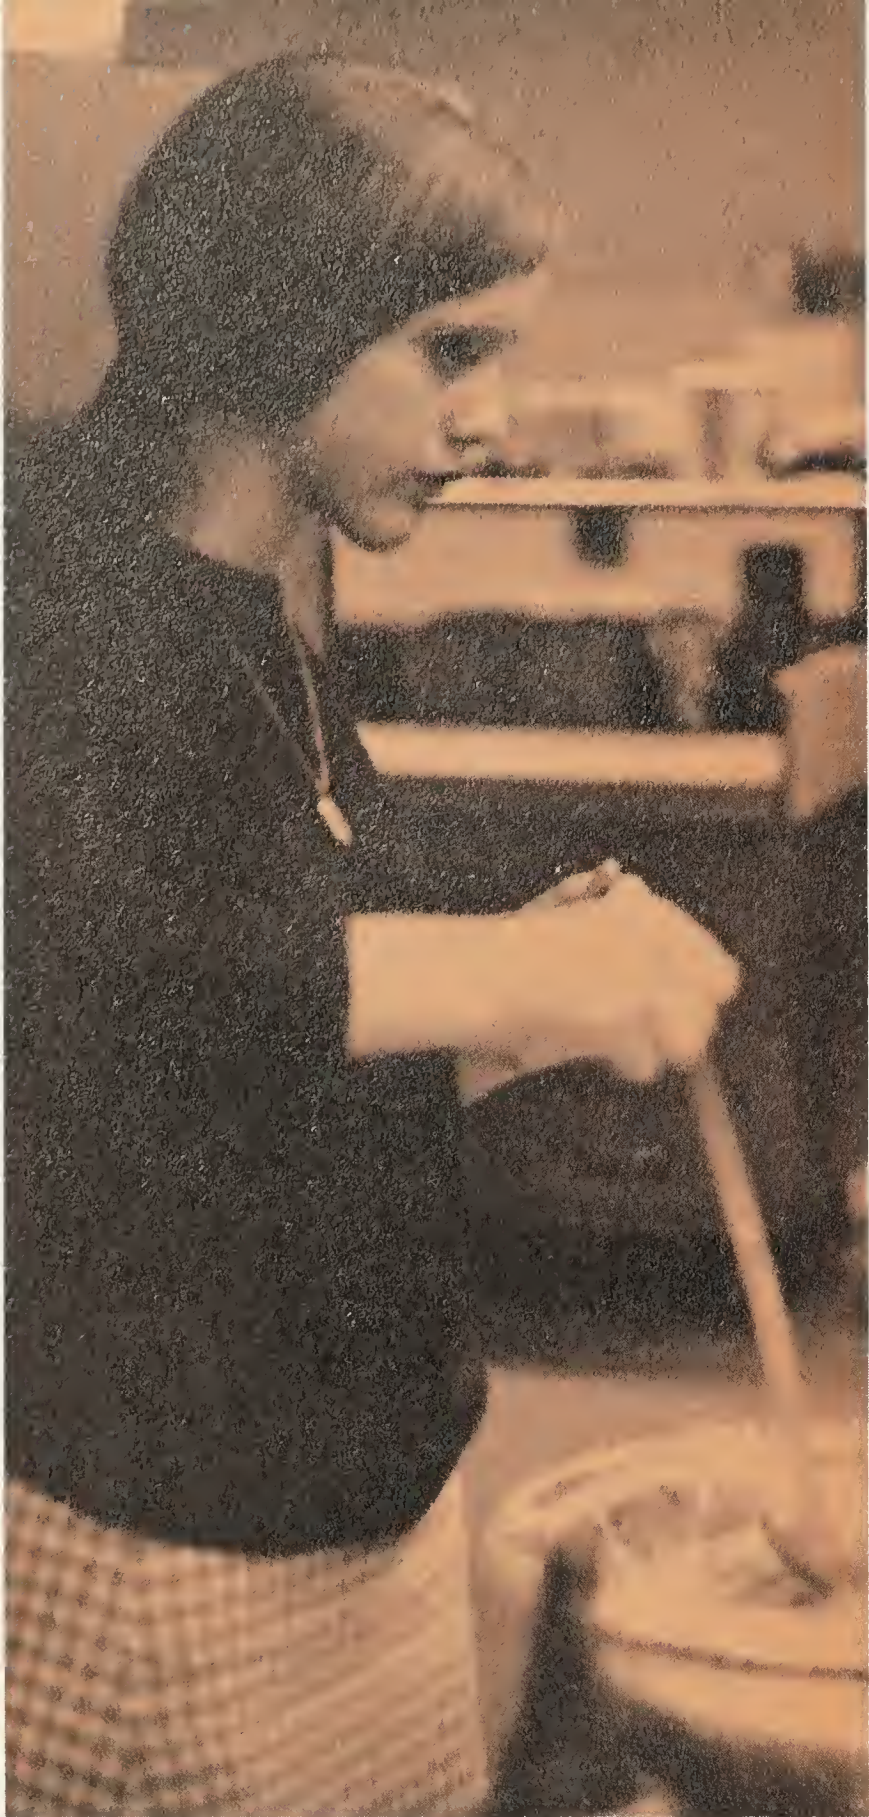

Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Alexander take a short rest before cleaning the auditorium lobby.

Seniors

The last football game; the sock hop following homecoming; a regular school day. The senior thinks to himself "I will never have a chance to do this again."

Five years ago. The class of 1969 was a group of hesitant eighth graders; Liberty was a totally new and different world. They were from various communities and too unsure to throw away their loyalty to local schools. Then, as each year passed, students realized that there were classmates who could offer them friendship and that Liberty could provide a new place to display school spirit. It became important to belong to the school, to a group, to the class.

The brick walls are scratched in places and the white walks bear the marks of shoes. Liberty is five years old. The class of nineteen sixty-nine has helped Liberty grow up. Liberty has molded the students into a group with memories of new friendships, heartbreaks, and a special pride in being the first class to finish all five years at Liberty.

Juniors

B. B. Napier, Vice President, serves refreshments to the students and teachers at the Junior Dance.

Realizing the importance of their junior year, the class began early the construction of that segment of road which would lead them to their final year at LHS.

"Sitting on the Dock of the Bay" was the theme for the Junior Dance held in November. The Galaxies from Lynchburg provided the rocking sounds. Proceeds from the dance were used to finance the Junior-Senior Prom, the social highlight of the year for all the upper classmen.

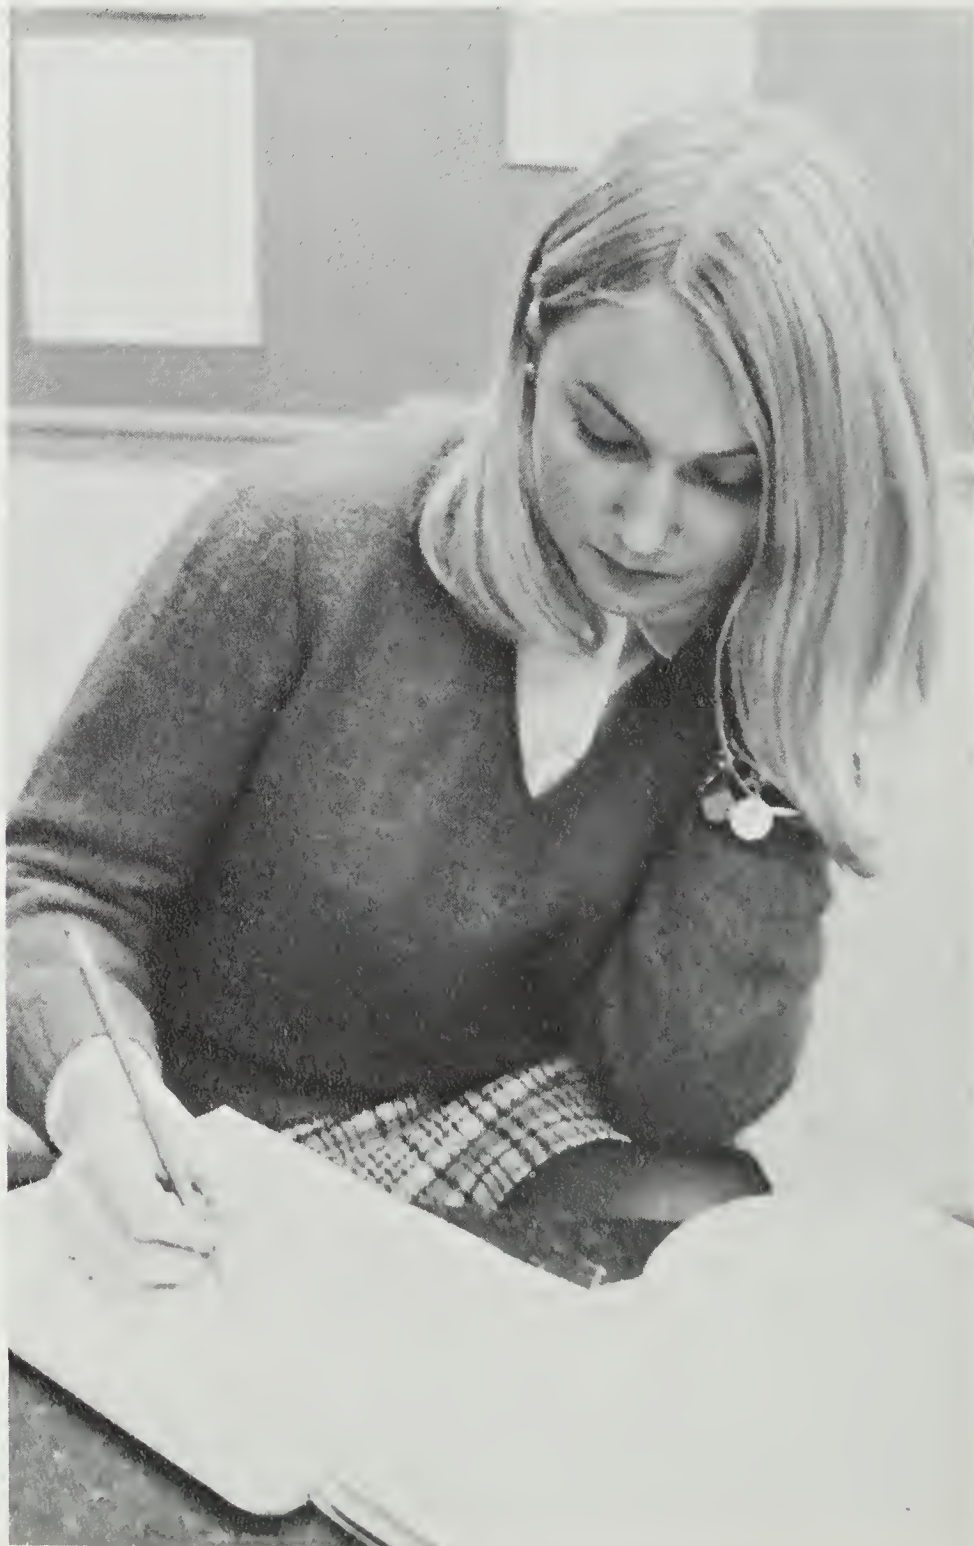

The selection of class rings was difficult and confusing because of the numerous choices of stones. Their arrival in February brought proud smiles as each Junior put on his long awaited ring and had the privilege of attending the first Liberty ring dance.

The class of '70 took a number of achievement tests including PSAT, National Merit Scholarship, and Scholastic Aptitude test. School achievement, outstanding leadership, and conduct were the criteria used to select the new members of the Beta Club.

These activities brought the students a step closer to that last stretch of road which represents the Senior year of high school.

Sophomores

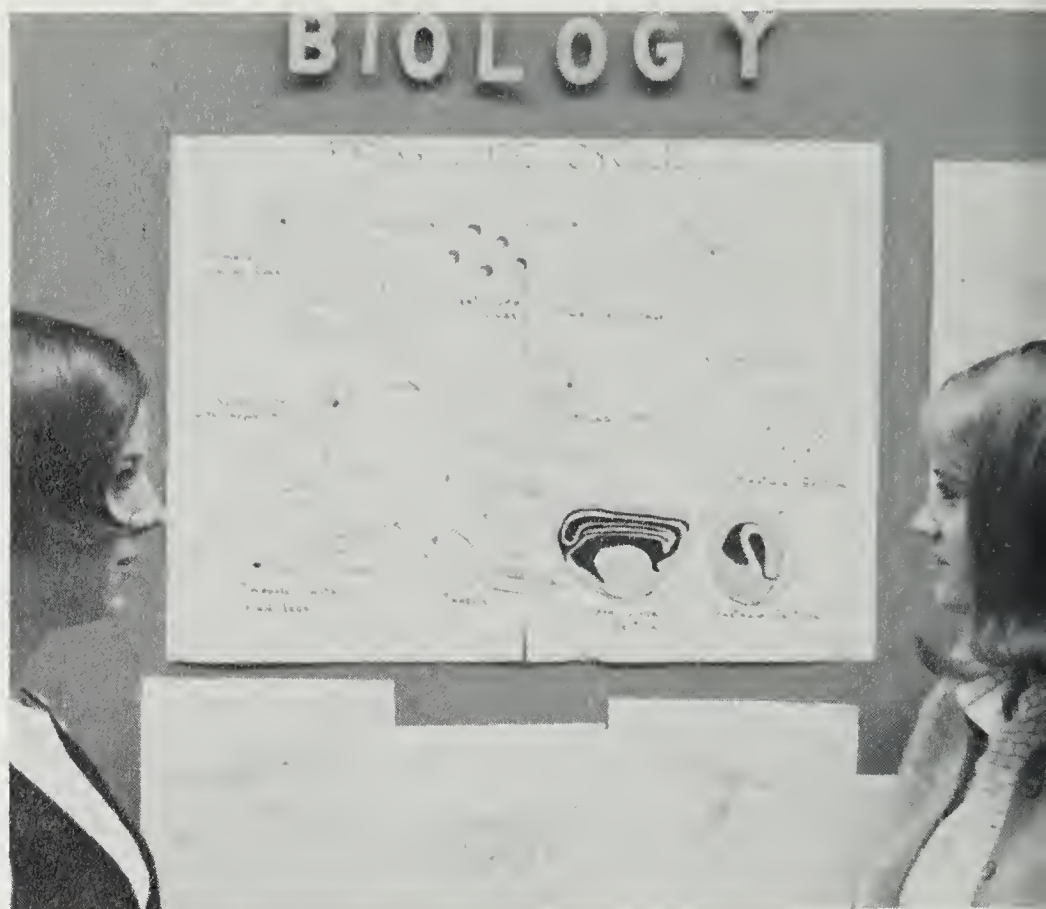

Cecilia Powers, Vice-President of the Sophomore class admires the bulletin board in Mrs. Thaxton's class.

The class of 1971 never heard of the sophomore slump. This was a class with spirit and a desire to fill Liberty with new ideas about everything from hippies to algebraic equations. In 1968, the class exhibited its school spirit in all club activities and was always ready to cheer for its team.

The class was represented on the cheerleading squad and on the varsity teams by people who exemplified all the characteristics that make a united class beneficial to Liberty as a whole.

Since the new society has bred more conscientious younger members, the class members were not found stumbling through life with their eyes and minds closed. They walked the roads searching for a new way of life.

If there was one word for Liberty's sophomores, it was forward-looking. This class was willing to consider new ideas and discard old ones if it could find a better way. The sophomores established tradition, but they didn't let tradition rule every action.

Julie Savage and Carolyn Newman, Secretary and Treasurer of the Class of 1971, discuss plans for decorating the homerooms.

Freshmen

Frannie Myers, Treasurer, and Ryland Brown, Reporter, enter their math class.

After spending a year at Liberty, the Freshmen had gained confidence and a desire to be a true part of the school. They were no longer confined to sitting on the sidelines; they wanted to be involved. All junior varsity cheerleaders came from this class and their support of all B teams was essential to their good performances. The officers of the junior clubs, which were made necessary by the interest expressed by Junior High students, were primarily freshmen. They learned leadership in the early grades of high school and did not have to wait for senior high to display their talents.

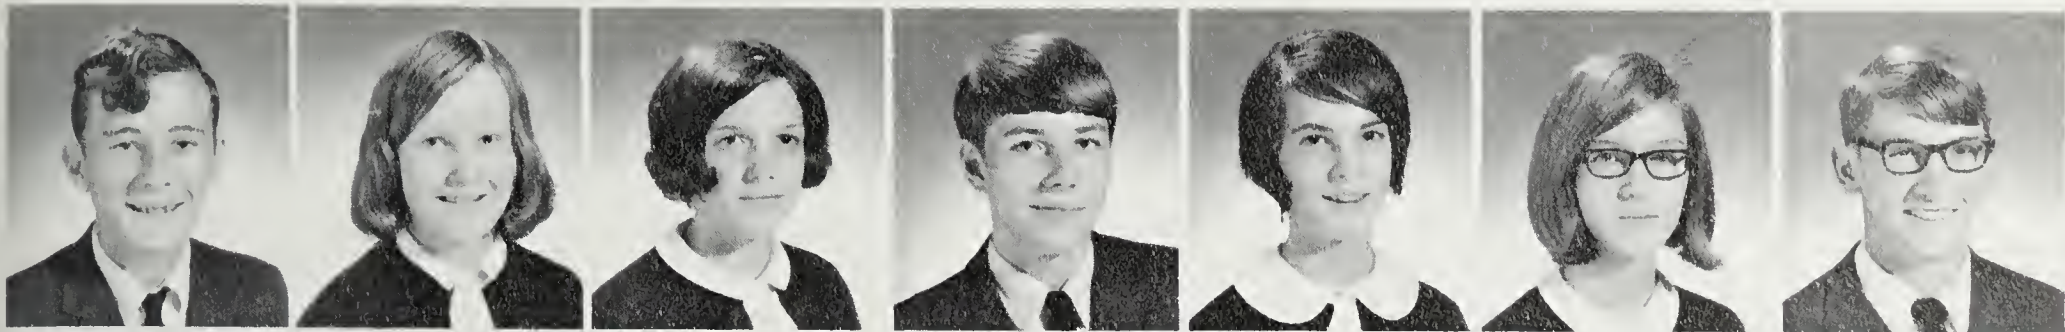

A walk through "A" building revealed that school spirit was not confined only to senior high. Posters for all sports events and school activities and a bulletin board each week in the front hall said that the ninth grade class was going to work for the future growth and expansion of their high school. The freshmen that supported the school received the idea of establishing new tradition as a challenge and constructed new school policy in small but important ways.

Mac Deacon, Vice-President of the Ninth Grade, helps Theresa Sneed, Secretary, with an assignment.

Eighth Graders

Rixey Lineberry, Vice-President, looks up the definition of a word to be used in his book report.

Here at Liberty all the roads from the various communities had to merge into one highway, if the eighth grade class was to continue to progress for the next five years. Local loyalties had to be channeled into the stream of school spirit, and new friendships had to find firm bases in common goals as the five seventh-grade classes became the youngest class at Liberty.

The class of '73 met the busy world of high school life with eager anticipation and accepted their increased responsibilities quickly. It was hard to find the needed confidence to become a part of the school but by the end of the year, the eighth graders had decided that Liberty wasn't such a bad place after all.

There was no time to feel lonely after the first overpowering reaction to the corridors and lockers, for teachers quickly showed the class members that they would experience a new type of education.

As their project, the class redirected and repaved the old LHS road left by their predecessors. In the next four years they will have the opportunity to do even more.

The Junior and Senior Tri-Hi-Y consists of girls dedicated to the motto, "Clean Speech, Clean Sportsmanship, Clean Scholarship, and Clean Living".

The clubs sponsored numerous service projects throughout the year. Members assisted in everything from the Heart Fund Drive to the spring clean-up campaign.

Both clubs sent delegates to the District conference at Amherst. The senior club sent two delegates to the Model General Assembly in Richmond. The junior club participated in the state Hi-Y conference at Eagle Eyrie. The club found that there were projects not undertaken by any club and attempted to create an interest in performing service, and also in alleviating problems which are present in every school. Sometimes it was difficult to overcome apathy and disregard. Each member knew that if she were to live up to the ideals of the club, some sacrifices were to be made.

It was not enough for the Jr. Hi-Y to discuss Christian ethics and practices. The members of the club decided to apply the motto of the club to practical situations. The members of the club instituted a debate with William Byrd High School, and in so doing, capitalized on the interest in forensics which may result in the formation of a Liberty High Debate Team.

The club further sought to instill Christian ideals among its members by inviting guest speakers and showing a variety of films. In addition, the club sent representatives to the annual Hi-Y Conference at Eagle Eyrie. Here the club members heard several outstanding speakers stress the importance of maintaining Christian ideals and principles in all sporting events. The final event of the year was the traditional picnic at the Peaks of Otter.

The Senior Hi-Y is a Christian service organization for junior and senior boys. Throughout the year the members shared their ideas concerning high standards of character and good attitudes in their discussions on Christian ideals and sportsmanship.

Some films were viewed by the boys on the various facets of living. Guest speakers were invited to give talks on a variety of subjects, and information from the talks and films provided the bases for several stimulating discussions.

In the fall the members worked with the other Y clubs in order to sponsor a sock hop after the first basketball game.

The club sent delegates to the District conference and a representative to the Model General Assembly.

Joe Mitchell, Reporter reads a comical story to the French Club as Kathleen Thomasson, Vice President; Joyce Dudek, Secretary-Treasurer; and E. C. Glass, President look on.

This year there were two French clubs. Because the membership had grown so much, the original club had to be divided into a Senior Club for the second and third year students and a Junior Club for first year students. Although the groups met separately, their activities were similar.

More participation by the members was encouraged by permitting the whole group to join in the learning and singing of French songs and folk dances in each of the clubs. The members were so absorbed in the programs that visitors to the clubs were frequently asked to join in.

In many ways the members of each of the clubs learned about French culture. Throughout the year native speakers gave interesting and amusing talks. In October many members saw a movie sponsored by the "Alliance Francaise," entitled "Alfairlle." The "Alliance" is an international French club to which some of Liberty's students belong. In February the students had an opportunity to see a play, "Antigone," presented live by French actors at Randolph Macon Woman's College.

"All Gaul is divided into three parts" but the Latin classes are divided into four. Since Latin was the only language taught for four years, the club members studied every type of Roman literature from Caesar to Vergil.

Each year of Latin was responsible for different programs throughout the year. The freshmen "suffered" through the annual slave day and banquet as they toiled for their masters. The second year class served as toastmasters at a program and third year planned the menu for the Latin banquet. Fourth year students supervised all activities, since they acted as the consuls for the club. On Latin night all the club members performed original skits written in Latin, but a few English explanations were provided for the audience's benefit.

Betty Lambeth, Chairman of Bulletin Board; Kathy Strader, Treasurer; Jackie Deacon, Librarian; Judy Gardner, Secretary; Tommy Hodges, Tribune; Nan Darden, Councul; Frank Morgan, Augur; Frank Smith, Consul; David Bowyer, Tribune are the officers of the Latin Club.

Members Design Bulletin Board Displays

Officers Ann Burks, President; Linda Miller, Vice President; Sandra Craig, Secretary; Mike Dooley, Treasurer; and Dennis Wood, Reporter learn more about the procedure of the library work.

Miss Ruff, librarian, checks out books, as Bobbie Watts looks up the names on the over-due book list.

Mrs. Oglesby and Mrs. Pachuta, the assistant librarians, prepare to carry out the daily duties of the library.

There is a world that can be found only in books. It may be realistic or fantastic; it may be factual or fiction; it may inspire or discourage. The goal of the Library Club is to make this world available to all students.

The members may serve as library assistants or they may simply encourage their friends to read. They demonstrate by bulletin boards, displays and reports that there is more to the library than a place to come for researching a term paper, preparing a book report, or establishing contact with a friend.

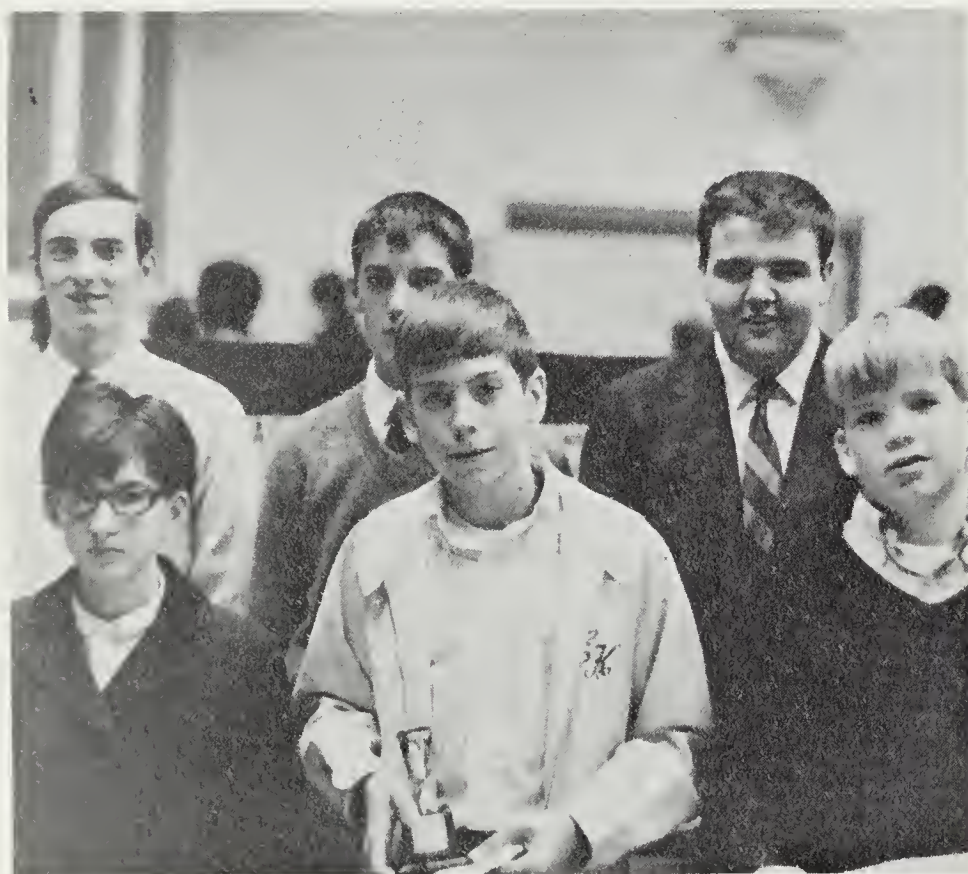

Having the librarian, Miss Ruff, as a sponsor offers the club an expert to help them do constructive work in the field of Library Science. This field needs more trained men and women. There is no better place than the Library Club to interest competent people in the field of Library Science.

Members Discuss Careers In Mathematics

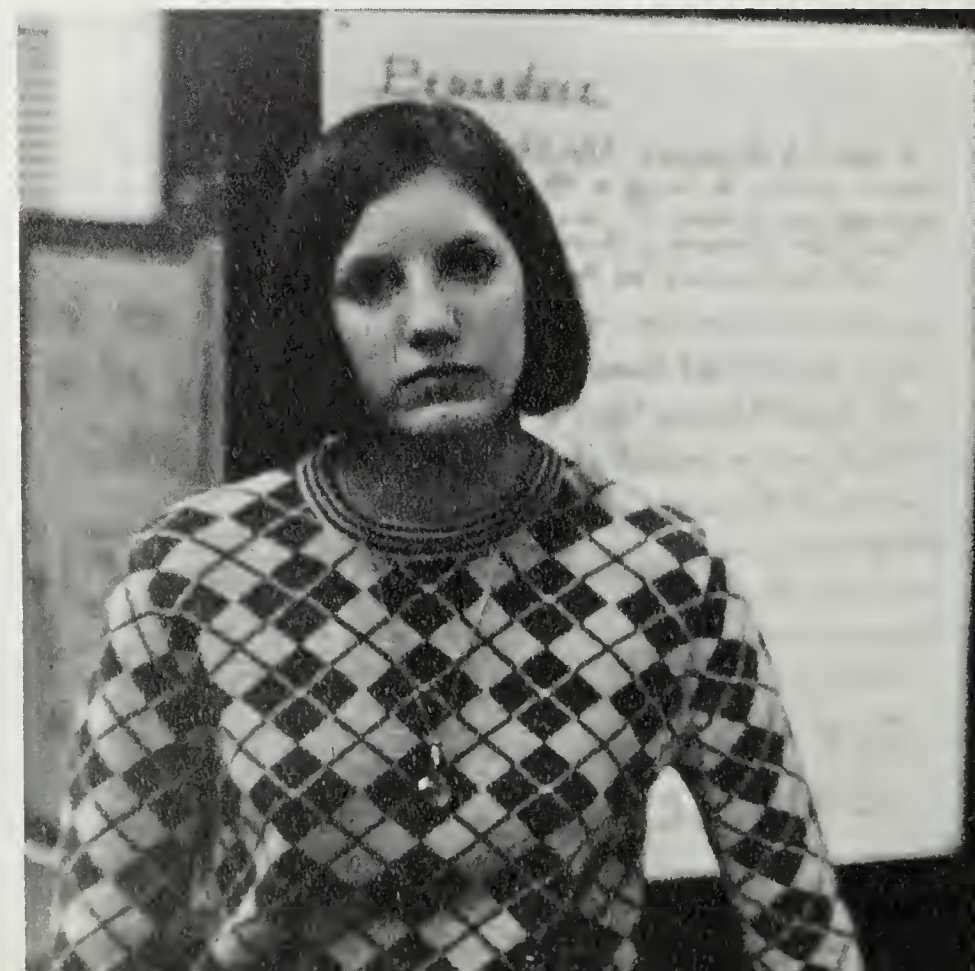

The top winners of the Matharama are Mary Kay Harris, Frank Key, Jesse Huddleston, Mike Brennen, Jimmy Lyle, and W. L. Wood.

Jimmy Lyle, President; Jeffrey Weeks, Reporter; Debra Coleman, Secretary; Glen Johnson, Treasurer; and Janice Arrington, Vice President go over the schedule for the next meeting.

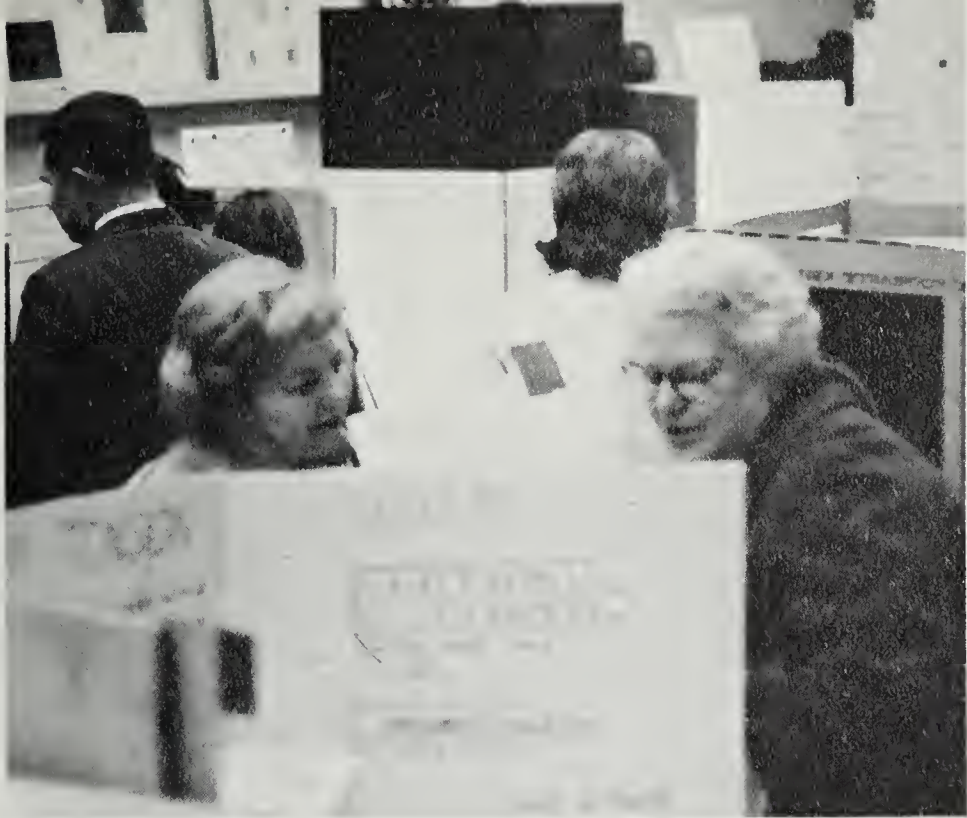

Jane Johnston exhibits her math project.

A triangle may seem a very mediocre thing to the average student, but after a year in the Junior Math Club, the many concepts related to that simple form become alive and interesting. Throughout the year, the members cooperated with the Senior Math Club to present stimulating programs. The two clubs jointly sponsored the Matharama, and several junior club members won honors for their projects in the exhibition.

Many discussions were held among the members on such diverse topics as career opportunities in the field of mathematics and the use of the slide rule. During one of the meetings a guest speaker provided entertaining and enlightening information on computer mathematics.

The members were not discouraged by the difficulty of the "new math". Rather, each new level added to their fascination.

Mrs. Turner explains a Matharama project to a Math Club member's parent.

The Alpha Gamma Theta Math Club, composed of Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors, conducted many projects in pursuit of mathematical knowledge. Under the leadership of President, W. L. Wood, and Sponsor, Mrs. Katherine Turner, the Senior Club in conjunction with the Junior Math Club sponsored the Matharama as their major project for the year. In staging the most successful Matharama in four years, the program drew 350 entries in four divisions ranging from general mathematics to advanced algebra. The grand trophy winner in the Senior division was Frank Morgan while the Junior division honors were taken by Frank Key.

After discussing all the facts of applied mathematics, Alpha Gamma Theta invited several speakers from nearby industries to address the club. In their study of the vocational opportunities of mathematics, club members attended the Engineering Day open house at the University of Virginia as well as paying an instructive visit to Babcock and Wilcox in Lynchburg.

One of the principal jobs of the FTA members was to serve as guides on College and Career Day. It was appropriate for these girls to help make possible a program dealing with institutions of higher learning, for the purpose of the club is to interest more people in the field of education. Primarily, the club deals with the training and techniques particular to teaching, and the programs of each meeting were designed to demonstrate the opportunities of a career in teaching and the different areas such a career involves now. Computers may take over the many manual jobs of the future teacher, but machines will never be able to take over the job of communication between two people. True communication will always be vital for effective instruction.

Sharon Luck and Mrs. Shelton, sponsor, enjoy refreshments after their Christmas meeting along with Amanda Sumpter.

Club Sends Judging Teams to Conventions

The Liberty High chapter of the Future Farmers of America encouraged and developed rural and agricultural leadership in young men because there will be a place for the farmer in tomorrow's society. The club found that money-saving farm management plans were beneficial studies. But it was not solely a question of the basic economic aspects of farming; the development of each member's character and scholarship was stressed, and the club also fostered patriotism.

FFA delegates and judging teams were sent to the state FFA convention and judging teams went to forestry, crop, farm, mechanics, dairy, livestock and public speaking meets. The club, while aiding in the establishment of wild life conservation projects, planted 3,000 pine seedlings.

The farmer has gone from a life that requires a great deal of luck to a life that can and should be as organized as a business. FFA is a way to spread this farming concept.

Officers Danny Wilson, Secretary; Jimmy Turpin, President; David Wills, Vice President; and Sherry Massie, Treasurer study recent art sculptures created by members of the art club.

Club Stresses Individual Creativity

Dennis Witt and Arnold Woodford capture their own imagination by the use of their artistic ability.

Is love blue? Is a line straight? Why does that horse look like the man next door? An elderly artist might ask such questions as he views the work of a young artist of Liberty. The young people of the "New Generation" are expressing themselves in feelings rather than in simple geometrics. Some pictures still reflect the conventional tones. But others speak in hidden ways. The Art Club was a place to find out why the student wanted to paint the way he felt. There was criticism but not the kind that discouraged; it was the kind that inspired or enraged the potential artist to do something better.

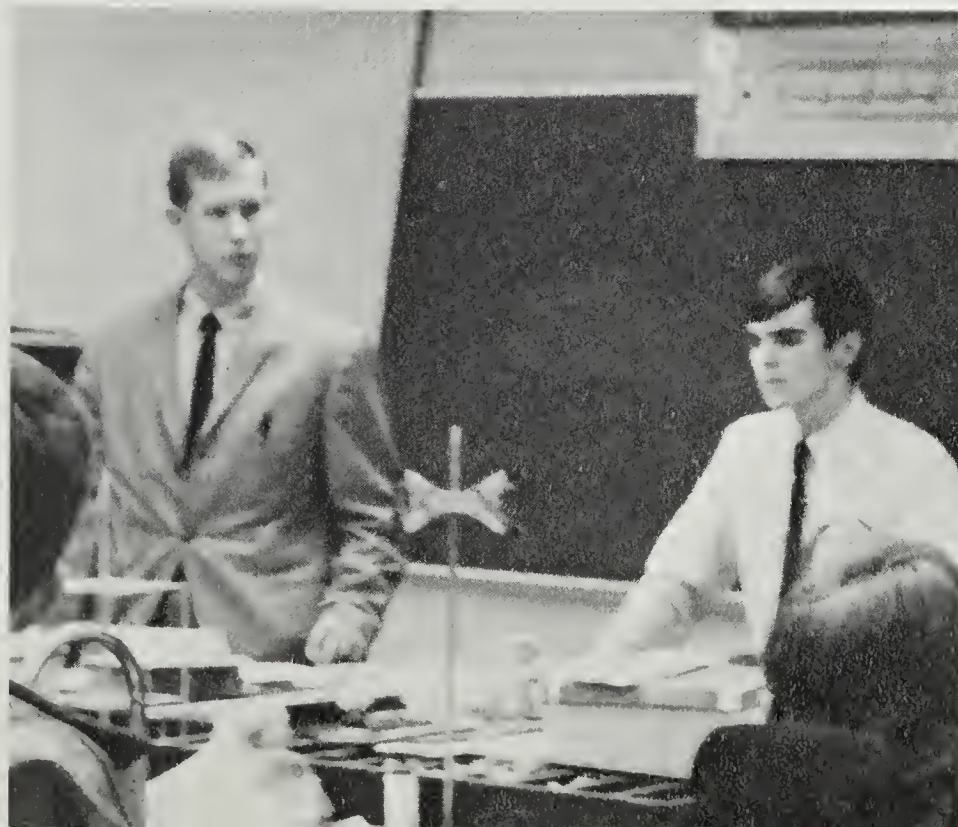

The smocks were greasy and paint spattered at the end of each session of the club, but there was an air of satisfaction or expectation left in the art room when the students filed out. The art student knew that he wanted to make something for the world to see. Art class showed him the way to begin.

JETS Explore the World of Engineering

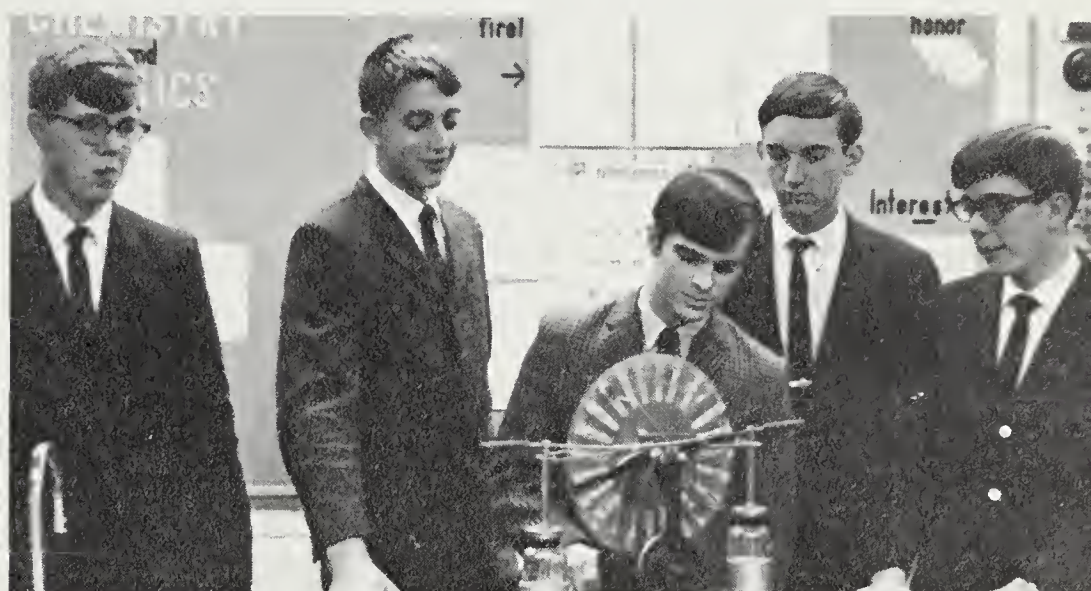

Frank Morgan explains his Matharama project to the Jets Club.

JETS CLUB OFFICERS—Steve Vest, Reporter; James Jenrette, Treasurer; Kerry Hudnall, President; Michael Brennon, Vice President; Frank Morgan, Secretary discuss the use of a Static generator in the chemistry lab.

The purpose of the Jets Club was to promote interest in applied science and to encourage participation in science and engineering contests. The club took two trips to view the mechanics of engineering first hand. Accompanied by the Science and Math Clubs, the Jets went to the University of Virginia in the spring. Later in the spring a trip was taken independently to the General Electric Plant in Lynchburg. The Jets Club at Liberty has been an affiliated member of the National Junior Engineering Technical Society before this year, but this year the members decided to purchase blazers and wear the Jet's emblem on them.

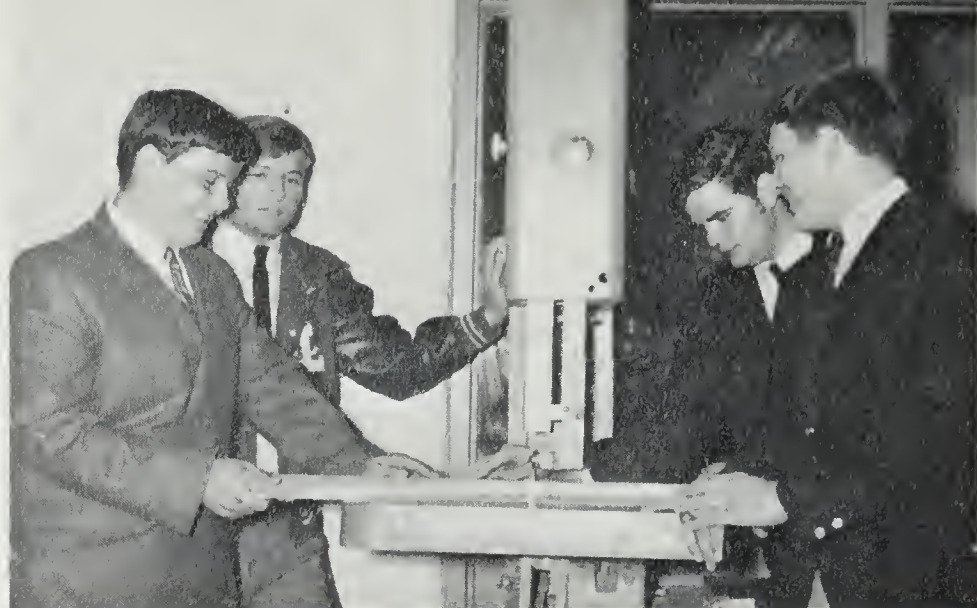

The members of the Arts and Crafts Club spent the year involved in the construction of articles for the benefit of the school. Many of the members helped the English departments install the movie screens that were provided for each classroom. Several meetings were spent fashioning candle holders. Later the members studied and practiced the various techniques of tooling and working in leather. In each project the members advanced their knowledge of shop methods and felt a sense of achievement upon completion.

Club Emphasizes New Health Careers

Bonnie Harris, President; Faye Hughes, Vice President; Debra Phillips, Secretary; Kitty Craig, Reporter prepare to leave the auditorium after a meeting.

In the days of miracles in medicine the members of the Health Careers Club found new vistas open to them for study. Many of the club's members were practical nursing students and within the club they found others with whom to talk over their problems, dreams and experiences. The club members found that there were more opportunities opening in the field of medicine as new processes and needs were discovered. Even space flights could present new jobs for people with a need to express their concern for others.

Medicine has ceased to be simple patient care, although this is still an important part. It is a study of what man will do in the ages to come. How he will meet starvation, over-population, or longer life spans. The members of the Health Careers Club were confronted with such questions and were made aware of the problems and challenges to come.

Bonnie Harris, Kitty Craig, Doris Massie, and Faye Hughes discuss taking the inventory of the health needs in the infirmary at Liberty.

Dee Dee Panter, Debra Walters, Debra Phillips, and Debra Massie prepare the patient Yvonne Toms, by checking pulse rate and temperature, as a part of their class project.

DE Club Members Attend the Fall Rally

In this growing world of big business, it is necessary to understand American marketing and the economic system. The D.E. Club is composed of those students who realize this necessity and are in the distributive education curriculum at L. H. S. These students are planning to enter occupations dealing with consumer processing and selling; they need to develop an awareness of business opportunities and problems as well as an ability to cope with them.

Members participated in district contests dealing with advertising, copy and layout, salesmanship, public speaking, display, and job interviewing. These were practical tests of all the characteristics and talents of people who know how to work within the business world. A Fall Rally where professional businessmen discussed aspects of their careers was a highlight of the year.

Susan Goff, Bill Lefler, Gary Overstreet, and Phyllis Toms enter the D.E. room rather reluctantly as Mr. Whitehead looks on.

Tommy Crawford, Billy Graham, Tommy Witt, and Grady Sumner take time out to pose for an officer's picture.

Grady Sumner is busy at work during the D.E. period set aside for students who work part time and attend school.

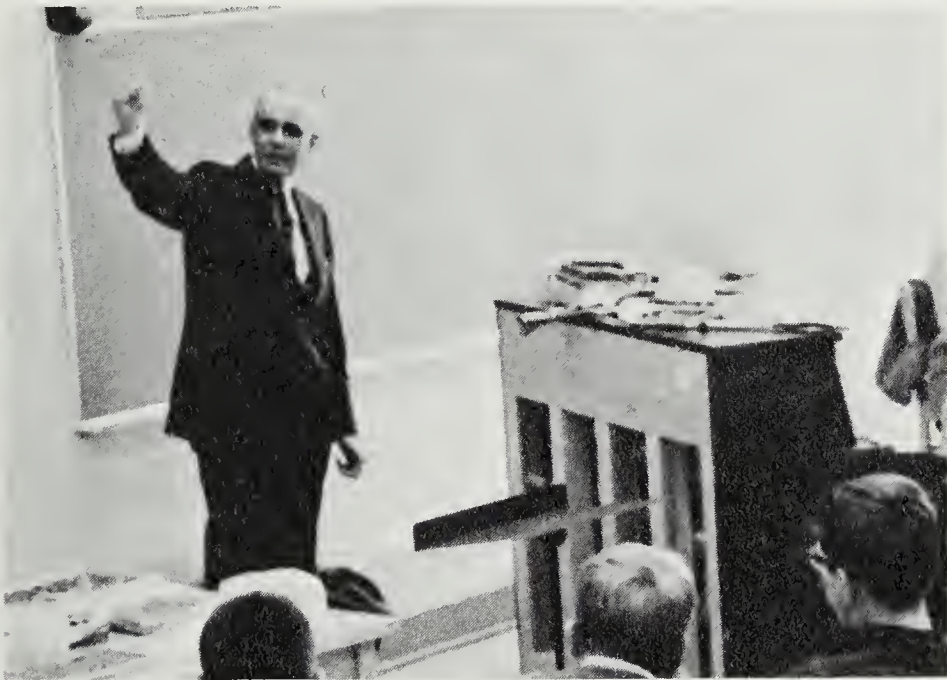

Spanish Club officers Diane Spradlin, Vice President; and Cindy Nester, President stuff the favorite Pinata with goodies as Linda Miles, Ways and Means; Laurie Dunford, Secretary; Dorothy Brown, Historian; Patsy Hartberger, Treasurer; Debra Philips, Chaplain; and Pam Albert, Ways and Means observe.

Cries of "Ole" and the strains of "Guantánamera" helped bring the culture of Spanish-speaking countries to the classrooms of LHS. They also learned to sing a number of Spanish songs. During the December meeting, the Club played the traditional game of breaking the pinata.

Last year the club, through various fund-raising projects, earned eight hundred dollars to send two students to Mexico for summer study. This was its major project for 1968. The club members worked enthusiastically in order to earn the necessary money. For example, many of the members can still remember being drenched at the car wash or burning the brownies that were supposed to be for a bake sale.

Roslyn Fulton decides on the prices for the bake sale goods as Nina Camden, Robert Wilkerson, Leslie Overstreet, and Francis Sanderson line up goodies.

Spanish Club guest, Reverend Mr. Yates, tells the club of his exciting trip to South America.

Ken Chappelle Strengthens

Kenneth Chappelle relates another one of his jokes at the senior high assembly.

Sally Markham, Kerry Hudnall, and Larry Fine, club representatives, listen attentively at an SCA meeting as Mr. Oglesby, sponsor, offers his assistance.

Debbie Croft, Pat Wilkerson, and Vicki Carson give their attention to a new topic under consideration at an SCA Council meeting.

The Student Cooperative Association at Liberty embarked on a campaign to involve the student body more actively in school affairs. Under SCA supervision, eighth graders became a part of LHS through their operation of the concession stand at home football games. The SCA also put up Christmas decorations in the courtyards of A and C buildings and performed a civic duty by aiding in the local Heart Fund Drive.

In school affairs, the SCA attempted to wipe out apathy and give the students a greater interest in their school. A newsletter was circulated weekly to all homerooms and SCA president, Ken Chappelle, wrote a column for the school paper to keep the student body up to date on SCA activities. In order to increase the rapport and to better communication between the student body and administration, the SCA established a suggestion box to allow students to express their opinions on any phase of school life.

SCA Officers: Kenneth Chappelle, President; Gary Mitchell, Vice-President; Kathleen Thomasson, Treasurer; Cathy Synan, Reporter; Kaye Kendall, Secretary; compose the 1968-69 executive council.

The major project undertaken by the SCA was a constitutional revision. In trying to provide something more relevant and meaningful to the student, the SCA rewrote the constitution which had served LHS since its initial year.

In conforming with its goal of student participation, the new constitution was offered to the students in the form of a referendum. In conjunction with the referendum, the SCA scheduled an election of officers for the 1969-'70 year. The SCA successfully revitalized student participation in many activities afforded by LHS.

The officers of the Beta Club, Mike Jones, President; Barbara Murchison, Reporter; Kathy Stevens, Treasurer; Brian Craig, Vice-President; Diane Waugh, Secretary, work hard preparing a program for a called meeting.

The greatest honor that a school can bestow upon a student is election to the Beta Club. Members are tapped in December from among the Junior and Senior classes. In order to qualify for membership, a candidate must have accumulated at least a B average and must have demonstrated a desire to serve his school.

The activities of the club are designed to promote scholarship among its members. Since most of the members are leaders of other clubs and organizations at Liberty, the members strive constantly to realize their goal of service by participating in all phases of extra-curricular life.

In November, the Beta Club sponsored the L.H.S. members to the WDBJ Klassroom Kwis program. The club presented medals to the ten seniors with the highest cumulative grade point averages and presented similar awards to seniors who had successfully completed all courses offered in one language.

As they prepared themselves for the work after high school, Liberty High's Beta Club members learned the value of community service and they developed a real desire to succeed in future endeavors.

Bedford County continued its record of outstanding science work in 1968-'69 and the S.O.S. Club at Liberty helped make this possible. Early in the year, the club attempted to interest parents in the club by holding a family night program. Abstracts from previous work enabled selected members of the club to travel to the Junior Science and Humanities Symposium and new projects opened doors to the FSA and VJAS contests for interested participants.

The club was not simply a backing for contests. Each month, programs informed students on problems and opportunities in the areas of social and pure science. The field trip was a learning experience and the club banquet had a speaker connected with some aspect of scientific research.

The major project was the continuation and expansion of the local science fair. Plans for location and committees for accomplishing the gigantic task were formed in late winter. These students and teachers worked with the two other county high schools to prepare and execute ideas for the March fair. This fair also carried out the S.O.S. theme to promote interest in science among the student body, community, and surrounding districts. The club, by careful planning and member cooperation, succeeded in advancing the Bedford County science program to the local and national level.

Staff Modernizes 1969 Heritage

Mr. Sullivan works with Susie Putney and Marcella Schools on copy for the yearbook.

The HERITAGE, as all staff members learned, was a full-time job. As the 1969 HERITAGE progressed from dummies to masters to the finished product, the staff experienced disagreements, frustrations, laughter, and finally, relief as the HERITAGE was completed.

Although some members had served on previous staffs, many were new, and all members were required to learn new techniques this year. The staff had to cope with earlier deadlines and detailed drawings, and the two days provided after school were often not sufficient to complete all necessary work. Editors and their staff frequently devoted long hours at home.

Because of its previous success with advertising, Liberty was chosen to host the Delmar Yearbook Clinic where new equipment and new yearbook styles were displayed. The 1968 HERITAGE traveled with representatives for the 1970 staff to the SIPA conference held at Washington and Lee. During the three-day workshop, many ideas were considered for future yearbooks at Liberty.

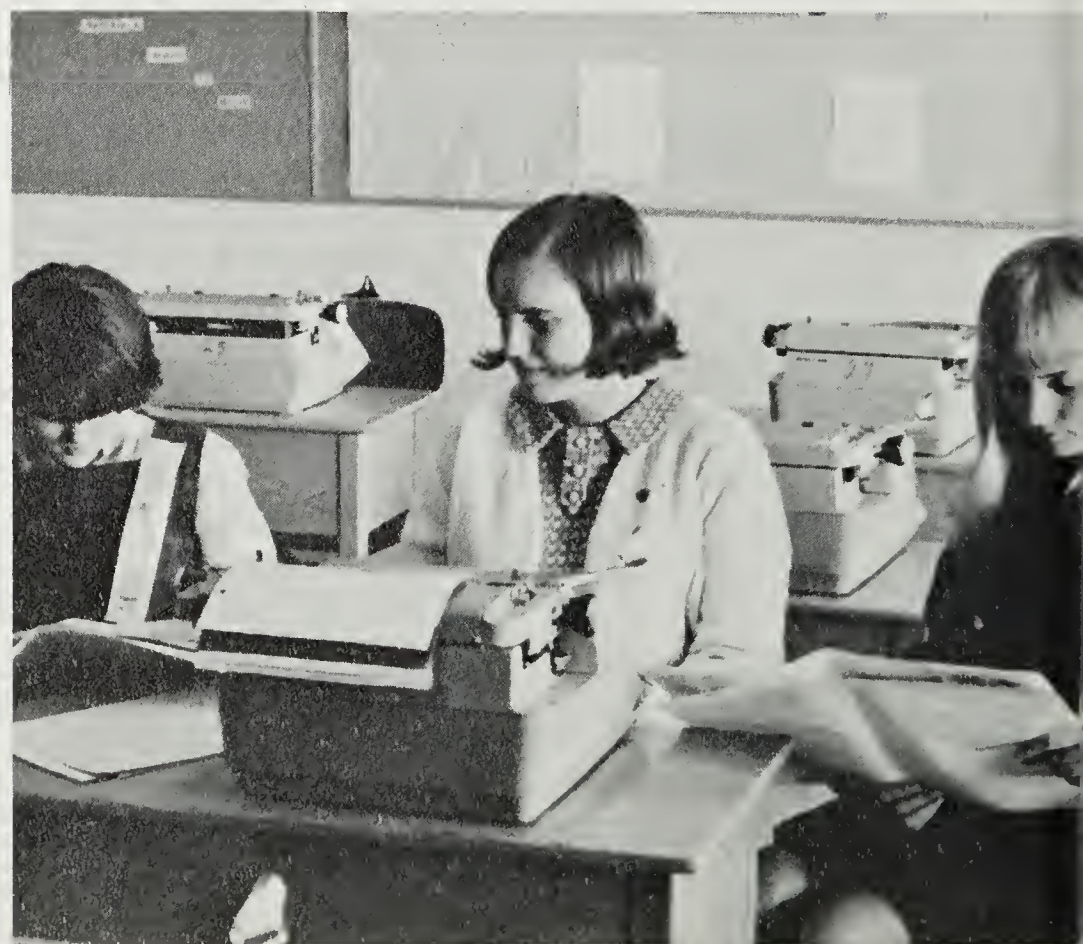

Phyllis Franklin, Pam Powers, and Kakie Lyle, eighth grade representatives on the staff, work with Sherry Collins, typist on some of the page layouts.

Mrs. Sigmon, sponsor, advises Tri-Editors, Mary Jane Belcher, Dianne Waugh, and Nan Darden on correct copy fitting procedures for the HERITAGE.

Nadine Massie, proofreader; Kaye Wright, typist; and Charlotte Gregory, Index Editor put final touches on the index.

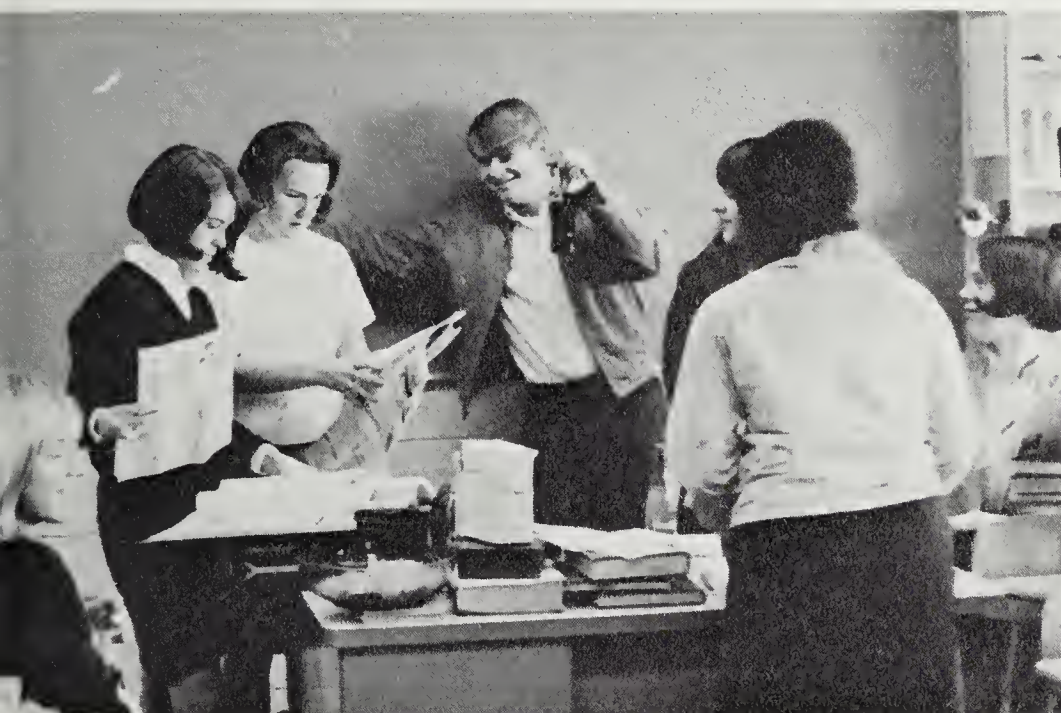

Sherry Oliver gives instructions to Linda Nichols, Lou Clark, Barbara Thomas, Kerry Hudnall, and Pam Clayton, concerning the next issue of the paper.

The SENTINEL revealed that the staff was an ambitious one. Subscription sales increased as the result of an active staff and poster campaign. A sock hop, free to subscription holders, was employed as an additional incentive.

The copy and pictures for each edition of the paper were carefully screened in order to create the right type of monthly publication. Deeper insights were sought into current school events that could be projected by a local daily paper. Editorial comments were limited to issues that dealt with the problems of school life and there were also comments from the students themselves on the policies or ideas of Liberty. One major project of the staff was to help promote political interest in the November campaign by conducting and publishing a poll taken from all classes concerning voting preferences. By bringing in concise and informative articles, the editor and her staff attempted to publish a paper of sound journalistic standing.

Mr. Keeling gives directions on acting to David Glass, Cindy Nester, and Robert Phillips during a practice session.

There is a place within the mechanical society for people who can express and interpret human feelings, in life-like situations or in fantasy. The Dramatics Club attempted to convey this ability to its members by presenting programs dealing with the theatrical situations and productions. Members helped to stage the Miss LHS Pageant and donated their services to the cast of the senior play. The club worked closely with the dramatics class to produce two one-act plays during the fall and winter periods.

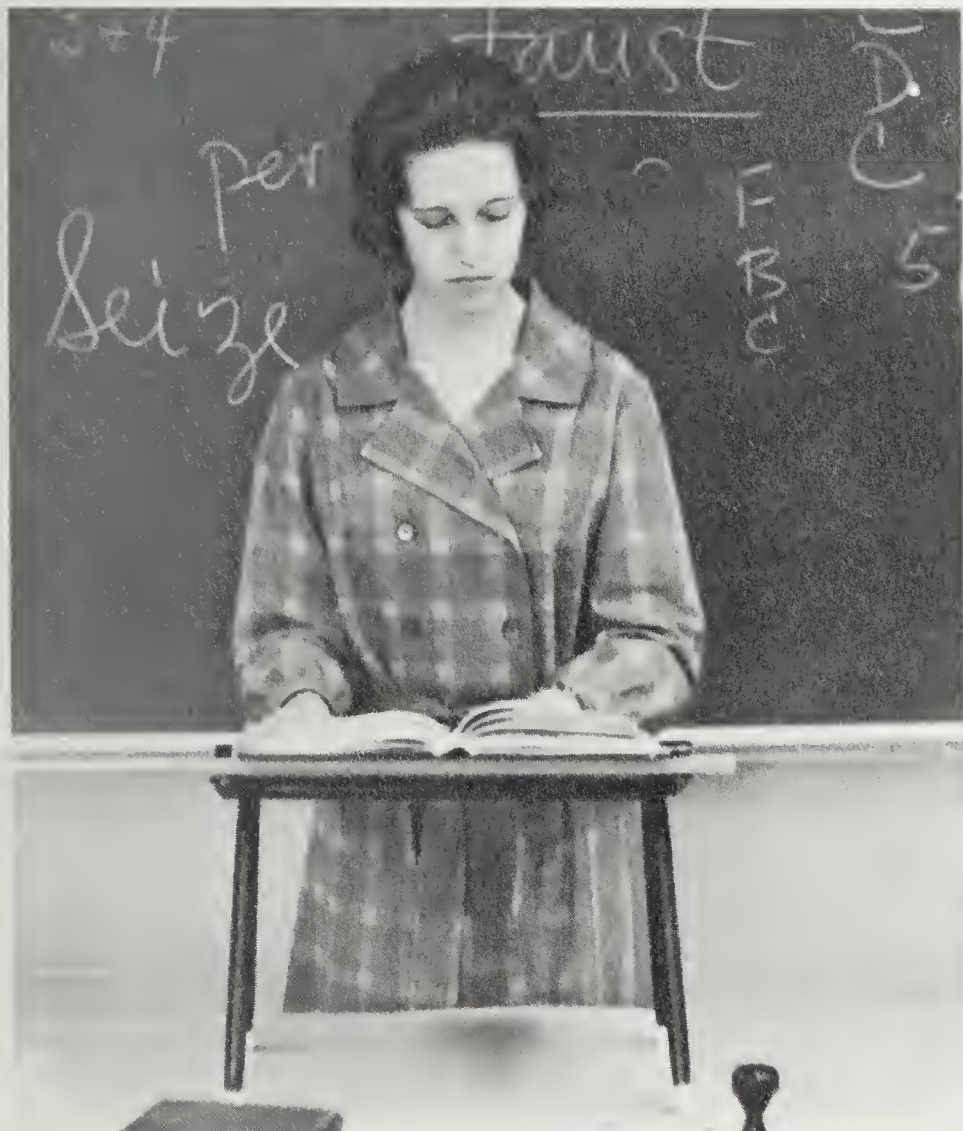

The club officers assigned club members to committees for setting productions, and staging the club skits. Criticism was an abundant quantity at the meetings and students profited from instructions on projection and gestures.

Club Promotes Participation in Forensics

Barbara Lawhorne reads prose to the members of the Forensics Club in preparation for the District Forensics Meet.

Barbara Murchison, Secretary, and Frank Smith, President discuss the approaching Forensics Meet with Mr. Locke, Sponsor.

Some club members, Charlene Vest, Oliver Anderson, Ann Leftwich, and Barbara Murchison, comment about Barbara Lawhorne's selection.

Frank Smith, Oliver Anderson, Charlene Vest, Ann Leftwich, Cathy Pugh, and Johnny Arrington listen to Mr. Locke's interesting story while enjoying the refreshments.

The Forensics Club designed its programs to cover material not discussed in English classes. The club examined the meanings of poems which were of interest to members, debated issues prevalent to school political policies and auditioned the tryouts for the District Forensic Meet held in the spring.

The club was small, but this condition lent an air of familiarity to the meetings. Discussions could be conducted in a style which would not have been possible with a large membership. Many of the club members had participated in English contests and could give advice to the participants who came to the club for criticism and encouragement.

As the students learned techniques which would enable them to gain insights into their language, they came to realize the depth and potential of the English language and the advancement that modern authors are making in creating distinctive works of literature.

FBLA Gives Scholarship to Deserving Member

The future of business depends upon workers who are competent but imaginative. The FBLA attempted to encourage such feelings among its members by programs which included speakers and practical demonstrations on business techniques. The world of business moves along roads directed by parliamentary procedure and a committee was formed at the beginning of the year to study manuals of rules.

Study of a company and its problems is the best way to learn about the actual business procedures. The FBLA adopted a car company in the city of Bedford and examined its management techniques. Members of the club demonstrated active business interests which would insure the future of men and women ready to serve the free enterprise system.

Patty Jo Harris, Lou Clark, Dianne Waugh, Pam Clayton, Barbara Murchison, Mrs. Hamm, Cathy Overstreet, and Minerva Thomas discuss the latest Quill and Scroll literature.

Dianne Waugh, Secretary; Nan Darden, Historian; Patty Jo Harris, President review a recent issue of the HERITAGE.

Membership in the Quill and Scroll was a compliment to those juniors and seniors who had donated sufficient time to a publication with the result that their work was recognized by their sponsors and co-workers. This journalistic society is college-affiliated and membership can be recognized on many college campuses. Therefore, membership lists were carefully examined and only those who had performed their jobs completely and had kept averages of ninety or above qualified to belong.

The meetings of the club were called before school or in special sessions. Most of the projects were conducted by committees appointed by the president. One committee prepared a bulletin board honoring National Newspaper Week. Since the club encompassed both newspaper and annual representatives, it provided an opportunity to coordinate the activities of each publication.

Mrs. Hamm, Sponsor watches Patty Jo Harris, President, pin a new member, Minerva Thomas, as Lou Clark watches.

Chorus Contributes to Music Program at LHS

Music is a universal language and there is some type, which will reach the soul of every man. The LHS chorus used all forms of musical expression—classical, pop, folk, and jazz, in their presentations to the high school and community.

In the middle of December, the chorus presented a concert in cooperation with the band. A spring concert was also on the chorus agenda. The District Music Festival resounded with the voices of choirs from area schools. Time was well spent in long hours of practice and frequent appearances before the student body. The members gained the necessary poise and volume control for an accomplished choir. The chorus included all the grades from eighth to twelfth and therefore, the range of voice tones was great, and excellent variations could be found.

The LHS choir benefited from the undivided attention of a director who did not give time to other activities. At the end of the year, the students composing the chorus had received a new appreciation for all music forms.

Mr. Clark announces the next choral selection at a school music assembly.

Girls' Routines Enliven Football Half-time

Always found in front of the band leading the march or executing detailed formations, the majorettes and drill team added color and spirit to the marching Minutemen. The Majorette Corps displayed new routines including exhibitions of fine twirling, and the drill team gave performances of added color in their new red velvet suits. These two squads opened more opportunities for participation by girls from grades eight through twelve. The Christmas parade was the last opportunity to see the groups until spring when they again appeared with the band in the spring festival parades.

On October 5, the majorettes and drill team accompanied the band to the Southeastern Band Festival in Bristol, Tennessee. The marching Minutemen received a high rating of 3 based on their inspection and actual performance.

Attends State in Bristol

The LHS Band began an eventful year with the opening of football season. They performed the "National Anthem" at home games and aroused school spirit with such songs as "Dixie" and "The School Song." At half time the Band entertained the crowds with precision marching and the formation of familiar designs.

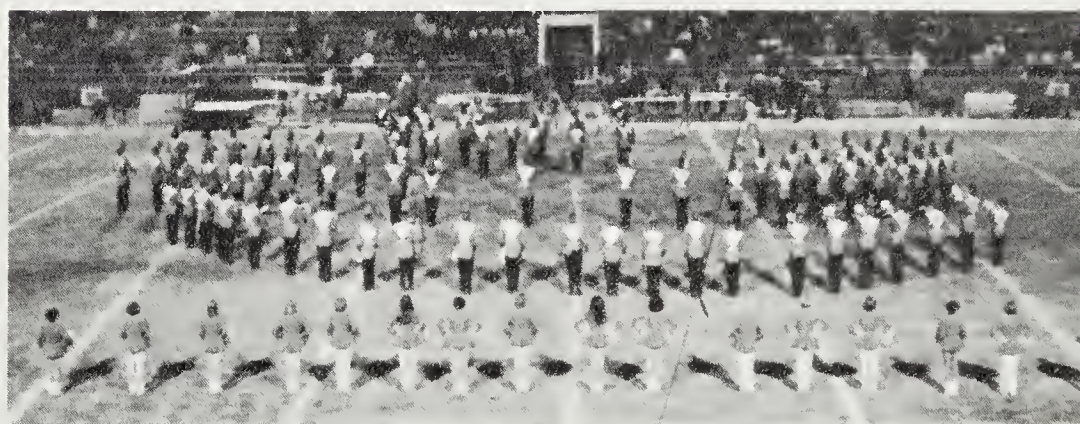

On October 5, the band participated in the Southeastern Band Festival in Bristol, Virginia, where they received a well deserved rating of 3.

The Marching Minutemen traveled to V.P.I. in Blacksburg during November when the annual Band Day was held. The band joined with other Virginia bands in the half-time show of the game between Richmond and V.P.I.

Parades played a large part in the active life of the LHS Band. The members attended various home parades such as the Homecoming, Shrine, and Christmas parades. The band also gave performances in several spring festival parades.

Although the Future Homemakers of America is one of the largest clubs in the school, the goal of the club was to involve each girl in some phase of home economics which interested her. Two federation meetings were held in the spring and fall and these meetings incorporated the talents and planning of members from the three federation clubs, Liberty, Staunton River, and Susie Gibson.

During the year one of Liberty's club officers served as president of the federation and at a dinner meeting new officers were elected.

Because of the need for clear-thinking homemakers who can combine economy with creative ability, many of the programs for the monthly meetings centered around new ideas for the home. At Christmas the club departed from the tradition of explaining Christmas decorations and offered instead a program of entertainment.

The only requirement for membership in the club was a home economics course taken sometime during the prospective member's high school career. This rule sought to limit membership to those students who were truly interested in the science of homemaking.

Club Arouses Spirit with Poster Contests

The Pep Club had the gigantic task of instilling good sportsmanship in the student stands at basketball games. They held after-school meetings to practice cheers to make posters, and to create slogans for the weekend games. They encouraged attendance at pep rallies and they sat as a group at the games under the red, white, and blue spirit signs. They followed the directions of cheerleaders in yells and the school song, adding bouyancy to the spirit of the crowd.

The club sold cookies and cakes at Saturday morning bake sales to raise money for posters and paint. The club members showed that they were interested in bringing the LHS sportsmanship rating to the top of the district list.

The 1968 Minutemen football squad evolved to be one of the most spirited groups in Liberty's history. Under Coach Bob Worrell, the Minutemen posted a 4-5-1 record. Although Liberty's district title hopes faded after the first few weeks, enthusiasm characterized the Liberty gridmen throughout the season.

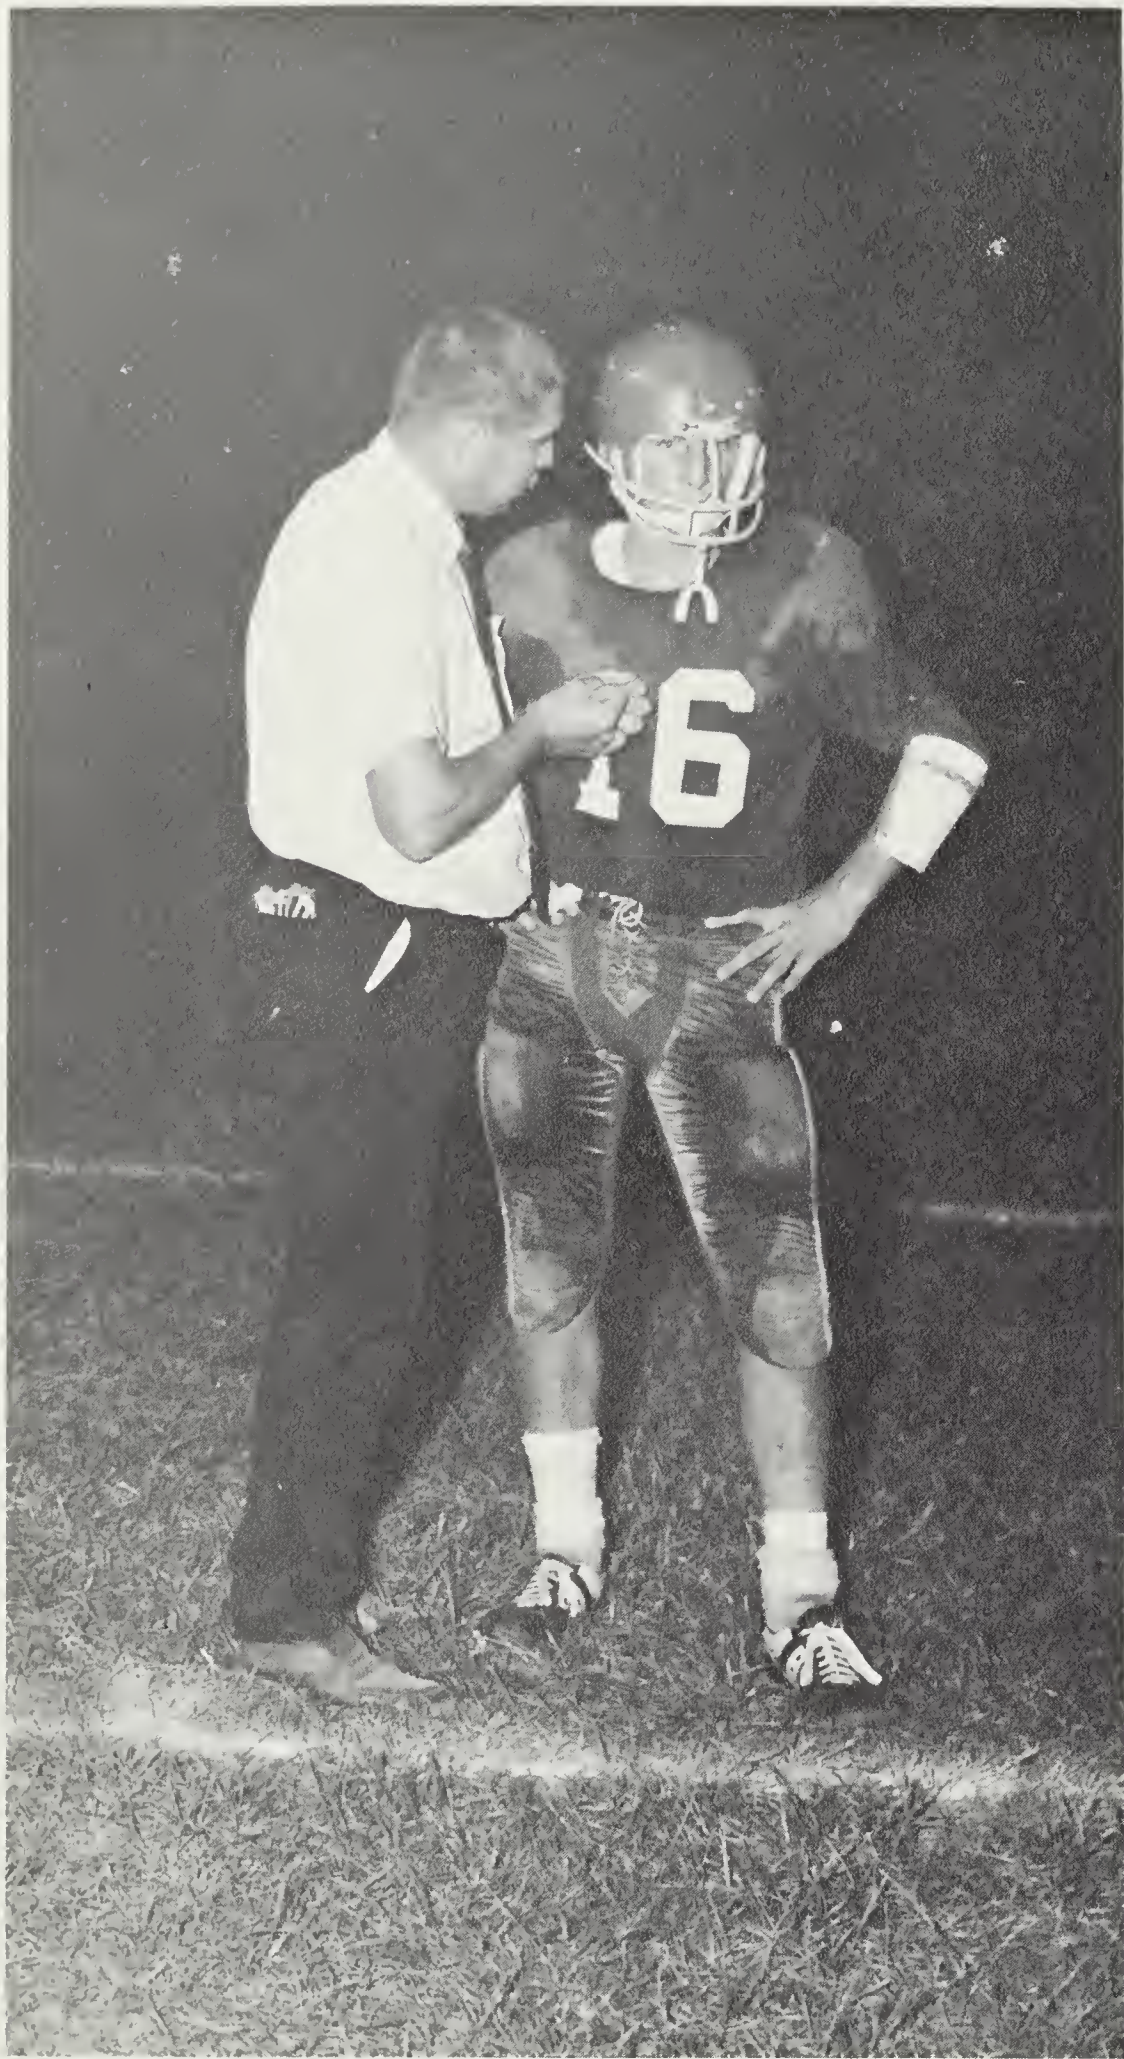

The Minutemen opened the season by drubbing Brookville, ruining the Bees debut as a member of the Blue Ridge District. Liberty used a tough defense and a ball-controlling offense. A combination of bad breaks and a powerful Cave Spring team caused the Minutemen to taste defeat in their second outing. The Minutemen pushed their record to 2-1 by downing non-district foe Bluestone in their third contest. Holding Bluestone to a first quarter score, while picking up two tallies, the Minutemen posted their first home victory.

Returning to district action where a last quarter rally failed, the Liberty team bowed to Lord Botetourt. Northside spoiled the Liberty Homecoming game by downing the Minutemen in a heart-breaking tilt. The Minutemen dominated all aspects of play except the score. Covington's Cougars, sparked by a tough defense, handed the Minutemen a setback the following week. Following the Covington defeat, the Liberty varsity team bounced back to tie Amherst. In their next outing, a high-powered offense paced Liberty to a trouncing of Glenvar. The Highlanders proved to be no match for the Liberty gridmen. A tenacious defense held William Byrd to a lone touchdown as Liberty turned back the Terriers. Liberty closed out its season with a loss to New River champ, Radford.

The junior Minutemen developed rapidly in mastering the fundamentals of the game.

Coordination Is Requisite to Skill

The ninth grade team had a limited but rewarding season. Losing their first game to Amherst did not discourage this small but dedicated group of boys. The first game was marked up as experience, for some of the boys played in their first football game. The 26-0 victory over V.E.S. gave the boys the pride of winning and gave them spirit for the remainder of the year.

Looking at the eighth grade record, one might say that Liberty does not have much future material, but these scores can be misleading as the young Minutemen were never out of any game. In every game they doubled or tripled their opponents' yardage, but their mistakes seemed to pile up defeats.

In each game they improved. They had desire, a good attitude, and pride in being Minutemen.

Flame of Victory Sparked By Cheerleaders

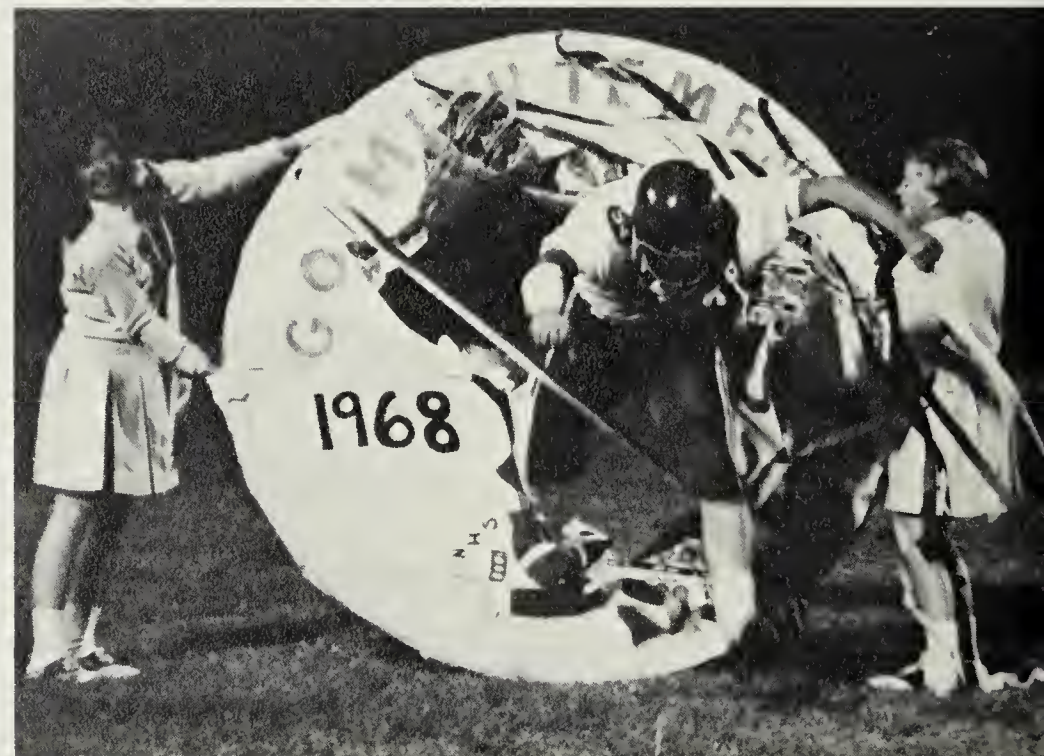

Joyce Dudek, Kathleen Thomasson, and Betty Lambeth arrive at the homecoming pep rally with the Northside dummy for the bonfire while Vickie Carter and Cindy Nester follow.

"We need you to yell" was the rallying cry of the varsity football cheerleaders from the beginning of practice 'till the last minute on the clock at the Radford game. The players needed school support and it was worth every chapped face or hoarse throat when the stands rose at the sound of the school song. The players gained more than support from the girls for at every half-time there was a supply of candy bars and oranges for the team from the girls.

Laurels went to the cheerleaders as they overcame members of the teaching staff in a game of powderpuff football. The victorious cheerleaders presented their homecoming pep rally among the colors of miniature floats, yells from boosters, and the smell of a bonfire.

Although none of the girls had been at Liberty for more than one year, they displayed an abundance of school spirit and enthusiasm.

J.V. Cheerleaders sparked interest in varsity games by posters in the junior high and helped the varsity cheerleaders prepare for the homecoming pep rally. The first varsity player at the game ran through a hoop prepared by the younger cheerleaders. The squad was a transition path for interest between Junior and Senior highs. The Liberty Minutemen opened the 1968-69 season with a 59-58 victory over defending champions Cave Spring. The team showed signs of greatness with its hustle and teamwork carrying them to the big win. Following the opening win the Big Red met defeat at the hands of the Amherst Lancers and Northside Vikings before going on a five game winning streak.

Following the lopsided defeat at the hands of Cave Spring, the Minutemen seemed to have learned an important lesson never to be forgotten in sports. Teamwork is the name of the game and that's what brought the Minutemen surging to a late season flourish of five wins in their last six games. One of the most satisfying wins for the team and coaching staff had to be the 73-48 bombing of Amherst. The Liberty boys displayed a pressing defense that did everything but run the Lancers off the court.

The Minutemen finished the year with an 8-6 district and 12-8 overall record. Liberty defeated Lord Botetourt 76-59 in the quarter-finals of the Blue Ridge District Tournaments. The semi-finals found the Minutemen battling top seeded Northside right down to the wire before bowing 53-40. The heartbreaking defeat brought to an end the playing careers of Ashwell, Mills, W. Bailey, and Coleman. Coleman was voted the outstanding individual sportsmanship award for the Tournament, and he was also named for the all-district team for the third consecutive year. Thus the 1968-69 season ended—a very exciting and successful year.

The ability to play together as a closely-knit team was the important trait of this year's Junior Varsity basketball team. The great spirit and team effort of the players enabled them to set a school record for the most wins for a junior varsity basketball team in the school's history. These eleven wins were due to great teamwork, with contributions from all players.

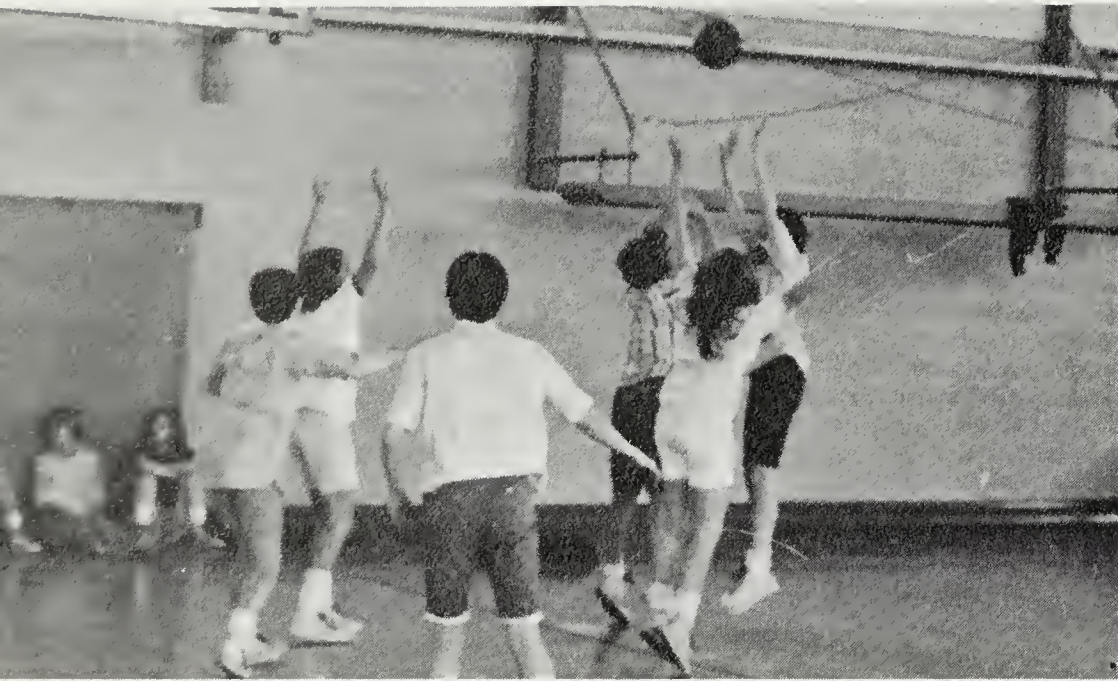

Although there were seven losses, many were only near misses, and every opponent had a tough time when faced with these boys.

It was a fine season, and the boys were proud to have played together so well and to have contributed so much to the idea of team work.

For many of the boys on the ninth grade basketball team, the game was a totally new experience. Their practice centered around the learning of the basic skills. The team was eager to learn and worked hard in order to apply these principles effectively.

The boys played together enthusiastically and were not discouraged, even though the season was blighted with few wins. Their effort was shown in the way each one contributed to the overall effort and in that several of their losses were very close matches.

Young, unnoticed athletes, members of the eighth grade basketball team, wandered in and out of the gym throughout the basketball season. These boys, whose enthusiasm and determination revealed their intense desire to excel, will one day become members of the revered Varsity Basketball Team. Coach Baldwin instructed the team in the skills and techniques essential to the development of smooth teamwork. The boys were introduced to clean playing and the other aspects of good sportsmanship which are admired qualities in an athlete.

Cheerleaders Hold Key to LHS Spirit

When the game was close and spirits were high, it was hard for cheerleaders to keep the stands within the bounds of good sportsmanship. They wanted the crowd to show school loyalty, but to display correct conduct at the same time. With this goal set before them, the 1968-'69 Varsity Basketball Cheerleaders attempted to center their practices and actual game cheers around positive themes.

The early fall bake sales and car washes undertaken by the squad did more than supply the money necessary for new uniforms. They also molded the girls into a cooperating group. Keeping their uniforms varied and their cheers constantly improved, the group of twelve girls helped establish a firm backing for the Minutemen.

While the sponsor and the older cheerleaders offered valuable assistance, the ultimate success of the group was due principally to the work of the Freshmen girls.

Liberty	8	Amherst	44

Bobby Owen wrestles from a neutral position against Glenvar.

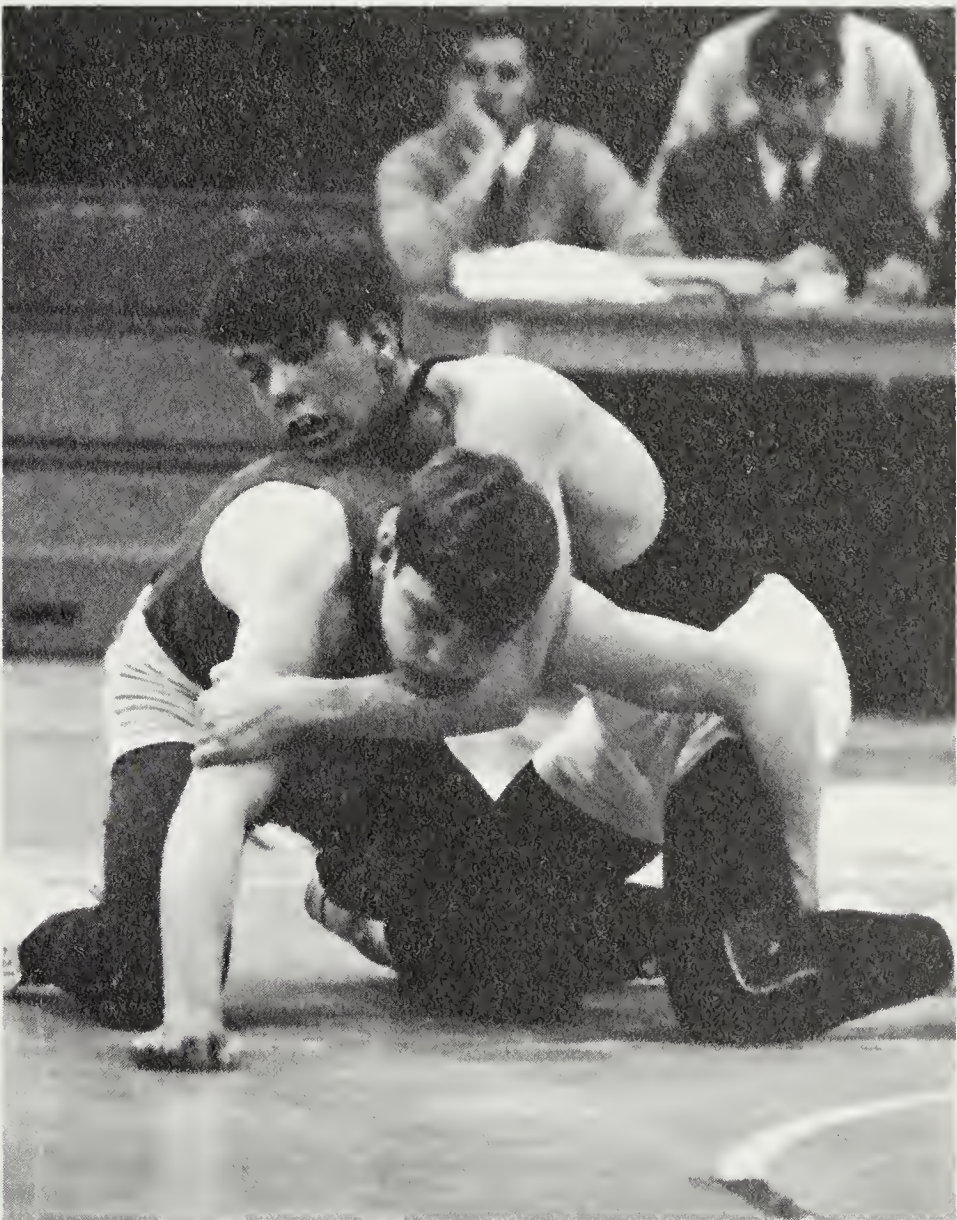

The Liberty High School wrestling team, beginning its first season at LHS this year, faced hard competition but gained invaluable experience as the young wrestlers met some of the finest teams in the state.

The team was fortunate to have obtained a fine, new mat which will provide area fans with an opportunity to see this interesting sport in following years.

Having no graduating seniors should insure the enthusiastic underclassmen that they will prove to be strong competitors in future seasons if they continue to demonstrate the same desire to win which they had in 1969.

VARSITY WRESTLING TEAM – KNEELING: T. Massey, M. Williamson, T. Nance, R. Hughes, D. Hunter, G. Payne, M. Overstreet, and G. Sexton. STANDING: D. Stevens, S. Wilkerson, E. Glass, J. D’Alexander, L. Roberts, D. Johnson, Mr. Pachuta, T. Frazier, D. Thompson, M. Wilkerson, F. Morgan, T. Mishoe, and B. Thomasson.

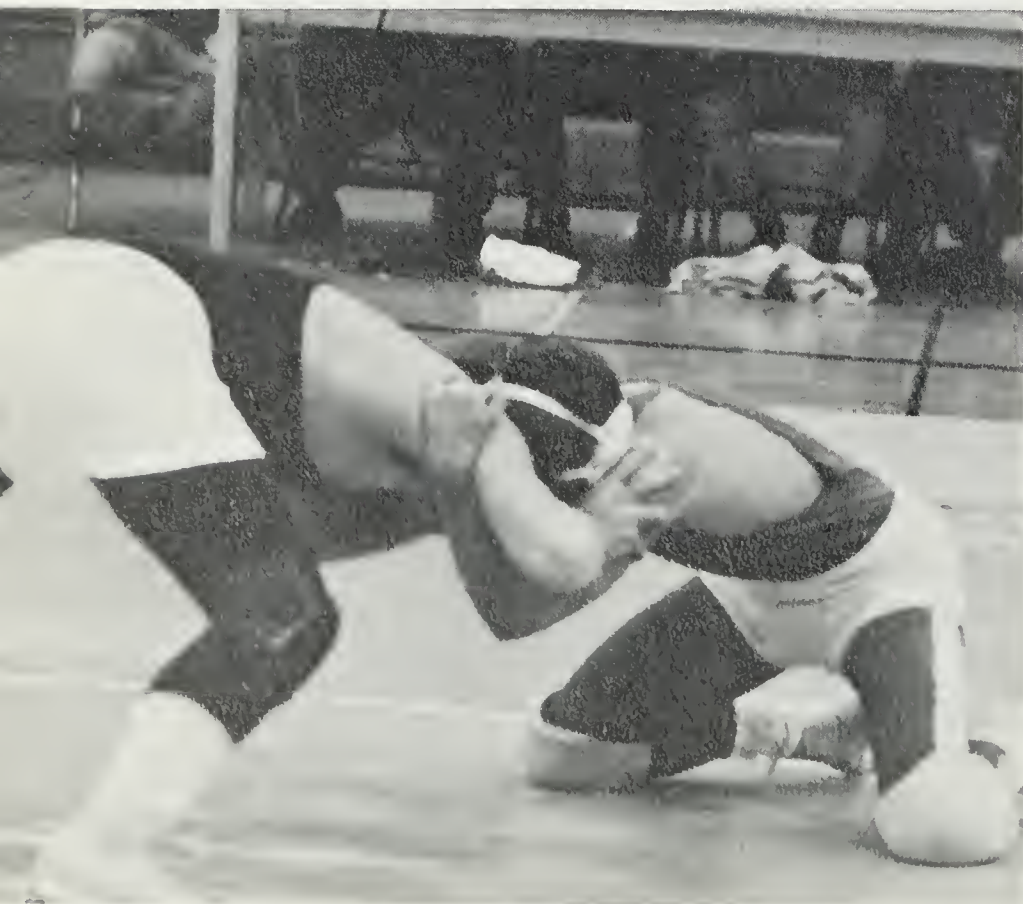

Grapplers Record Win in First Season

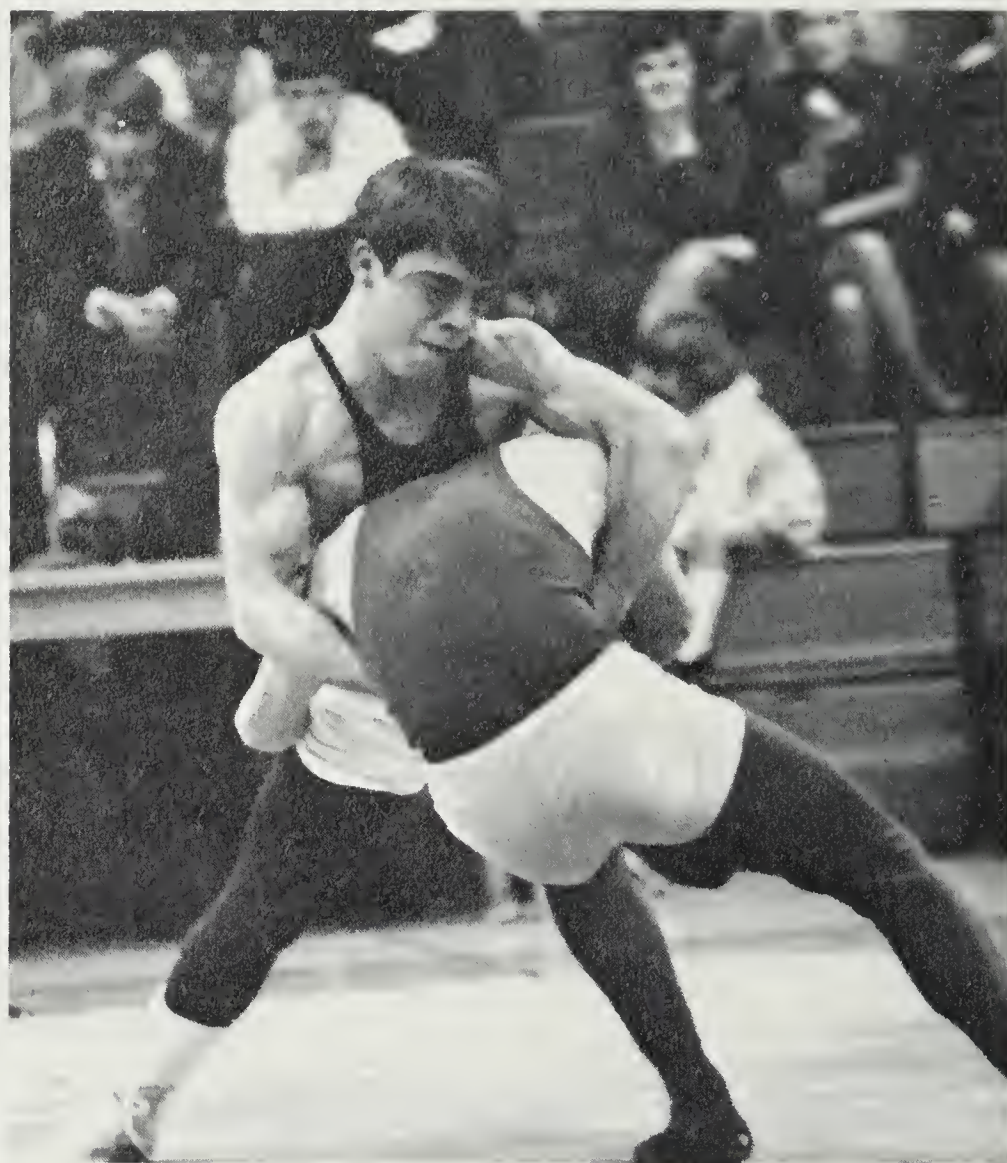

A Liberty victory!

Tommy Mishoe is working for a position against a Glenvar Wrestler.

George Sexton works hard for a touchdown.

Mike Wilkerson takes his opponent down for two points.

Liberty Hurlers and Power Hitters Lead Team

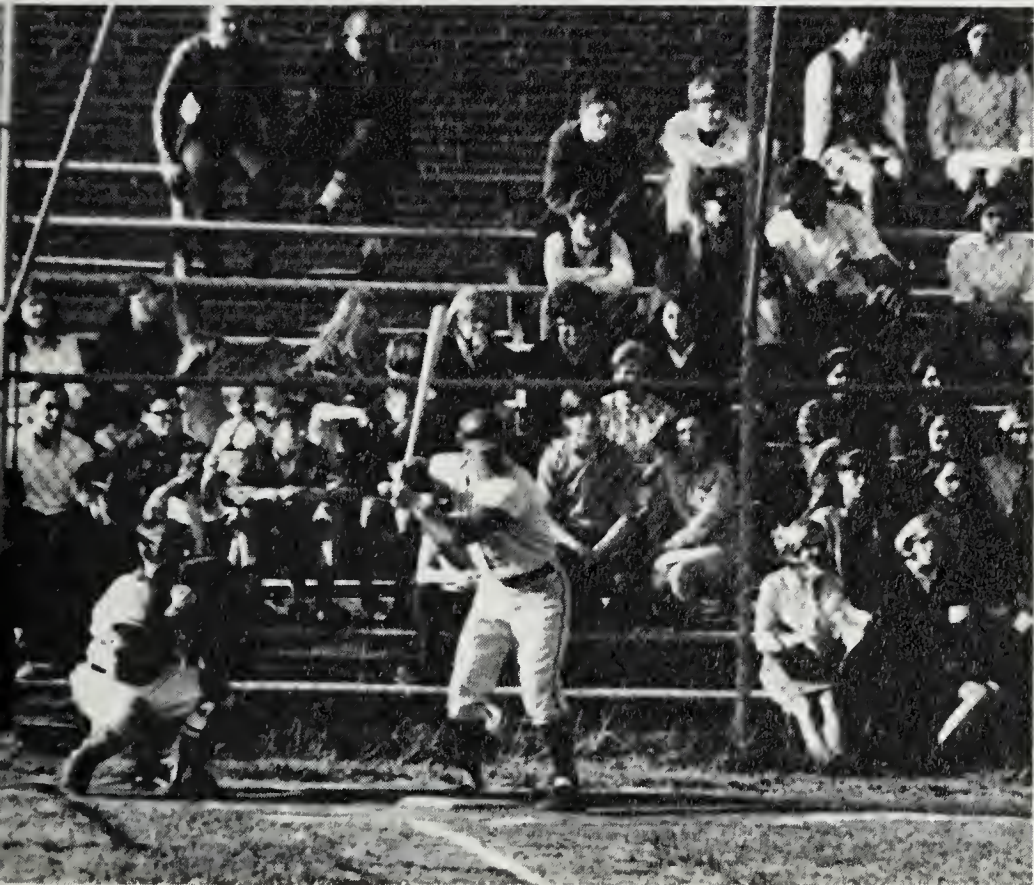

VARSITY BASEBALL TEAM – FIRST ROW: Mr. Ratcliff, P. Newman, K. Parker, G. Hubbard, R. Ashwell, J. Trevey, D. Wilson, E. Sims, L. Holofchak, and Mr. Cutler. SECOND ROW: B. Bayse, J. Orange, W. Byers, D. Tanner, P. Day, H. Thompson, G. Wilson, R. Obenchain, and R. Richards. THIRD ROW: R. Hughes, R. Waldron, A. Turner, T. Mishoe, J. Anderson, M. Dooley, A. Gross, E. Glass, T. Fulks, R. Wilkerson, G. Sexton, and K. Massie.

April	11	Northside	May	9	Brookville
April	12	William Byrd	May	10	Northside

Gary Hubbard makes a bid for a double against the pitching of Amherst.

Kevin Parker, the second-baseman, picks up a ground ball in an attempt to put a William Byrd player out.

Minutemen Veteran

Raymond Ashwell puts a man out at first base during the Cave Spring game.

Lee Holofchak displays his excellent talents as a left-handed pitcher in his effort for a strike.

Danny Wilson attempts to steal home against the defense of the Brookville team.

Rely on Mount Staff

Crack, whiz, a distant thud, and fans cheering wildly were the sounds heard at the varsity baseball games.

Liberty's hurlers and power hitters were the ground work for the 1969 Varsity Baseball Team. Behind the outstanding pitching of Lee Holofchak who is Liberty's only southpaw and Jimmy Trevey, the team competed well against district foes.

The boys started training the last of February under Coach Cutler. Running was a basic fundamental to get the boys in condition.

"Take me out to the ball game."

Kevin Parker displays the form which helped him to a .300 season.

Lee Holofchak, completing his windup, fires strike three at an Amherst batter.

Trackmen Surge Forward to Success

Mike Coleman carries the baton to the finish line in the 880 relay.

Gregg Bailey tries for a better score in the broad jump event.

VARSITY AND JV TRACK TEAM – FIRST ROW: D. Hunter, B. Coleman, M. Coleman, M. Mills, L. Campbell, G. Bailey, W. Bailey, K. Hudnall, and C. Grove. SECOND ROW: Mr. Sherman, M. Overstreet, M. Huddleston, C. Pinion, A. Coffey, R. Falls, D. Johnson, B. May, T. Fleshman, and Mr. Miller.

THIRD ROW: J. Bell, B. Turpin, J. Mitchell, F. Brennan, D. Newman, W. Noell, R. Deal, T. Frazier, and R. Edwards. FOURTH ROW: J. Craig, C. Mitchell, D. Johnson, R. Brown, J. Hartigan, R. Lineberry, M. Deacon, P. Hunter, J. Lyle, and M. Parker.

Larry Wood's extra effort enables him to win the mile with a good margin.

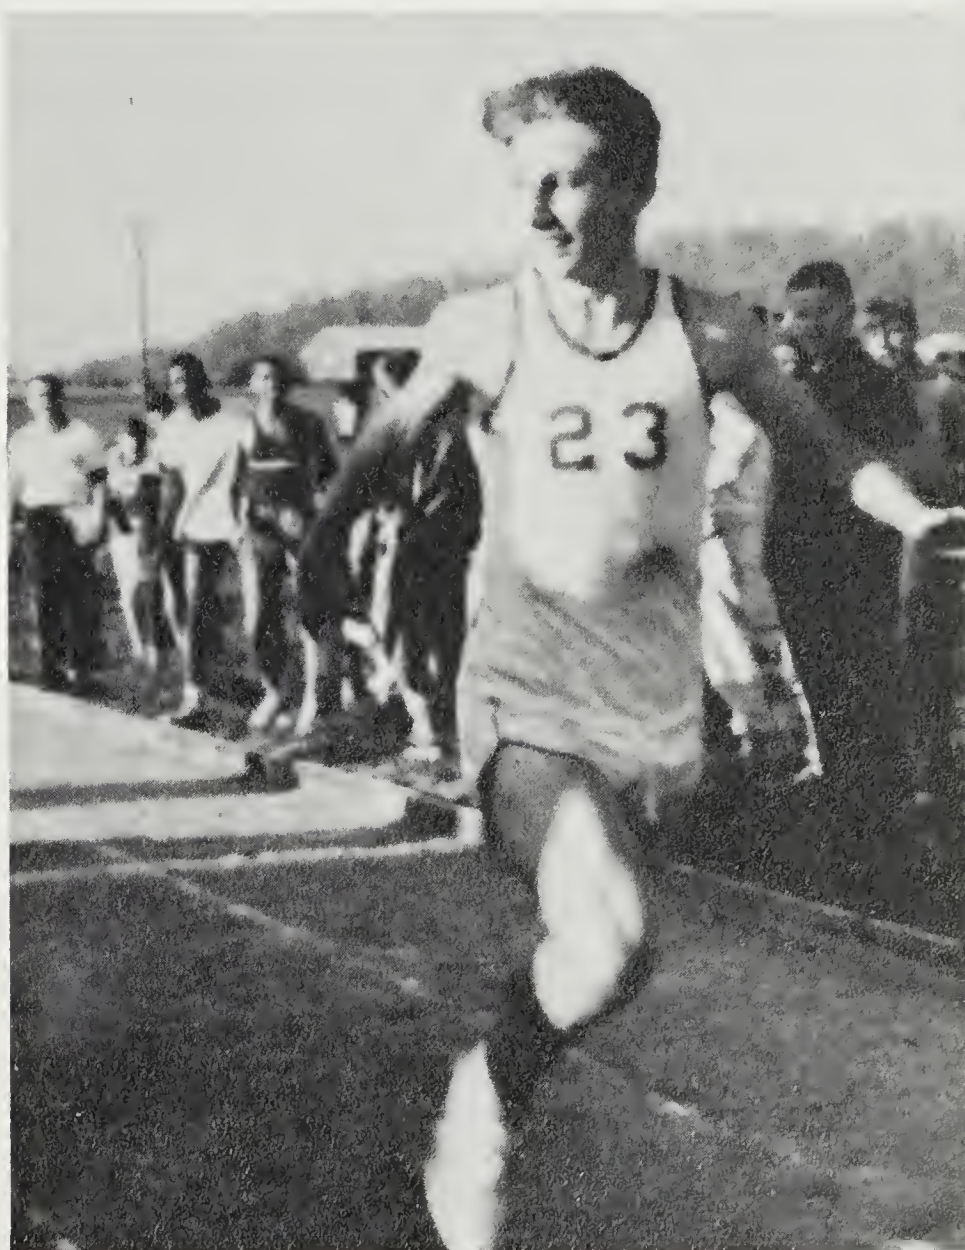

Kerry Hudnall and Tony Fleshman practice passing the baton for a coming track meet.

Jimmy Cadd clears the bar in fine style.

Strict Training Results in Victories

The 1969 Liberty Trackmen centered their hopes around two titles, the Piedmont Relays and the Blue Ridge District Championships. The coaches, at the beginning of the season, considered Liberty's team as the most powerful and potent team in the Blue Ridge District. Since more boys turned out for track than in previous years the varsity squad gained needed depth and versatility. The squad was led by competent seniors who had distinguished themselves in the district and state meets; and two of the leaders held school records. It was the strong determination to excel and to participate in every contest that enabled the 1969 Minutemen to add new laurels to the history of sports at Liberty.

Gregg Bailey seems to enjoy running in the 440 relay.

Proven Performers Lead Track Team

Marvin Mills throws the shot in an attempt for a Liberty victory.

Mike Coleman, clearing the high hurdle, strives for first place in the meet against Cave Spring.

Carroll Pinion and Larry Wood practice for the mile run in an upcoming meet.

L H S Trackmen Pursue District Crown

Jimmy Lyle, running on the inside lane, listens for the sound of the gun.

Doug Johnson battles for first place against the opposing team.

Running with tremendous effort, Wayne Bailey heads for the finish line in the 100-yard dash.

The J. V. relay team is neck and neck with their opponents in the exchanging of batons.

Golfers Drive for Third Undefeated Season

Steve Howell sinks the putt for a par in a match with William Byrd.

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of golf if he happens to be a member of the golf team of Liberty. This year the boys who constituted the squad practiced long hours in the spring afternoons and were rewarded by a record that clearly revealed their determination. The sport did not have the number of boosters that follow other school teams, but the boys felt a personal satisfaction in improving their individual scores at each match.

Graham Mackey chips out of the sand trap during a golf match with Cave Spring.

The Liberty High Netmen found that the only way to improve a tennis team is to play and practice and play again. For two afternoons a week the squad occupied the city tennis courts for two hour practice sessions. All the district matches were played away from the home courts, but this did not stop the 1969 squad from experiencing a rewarding season during their eight match schedule.

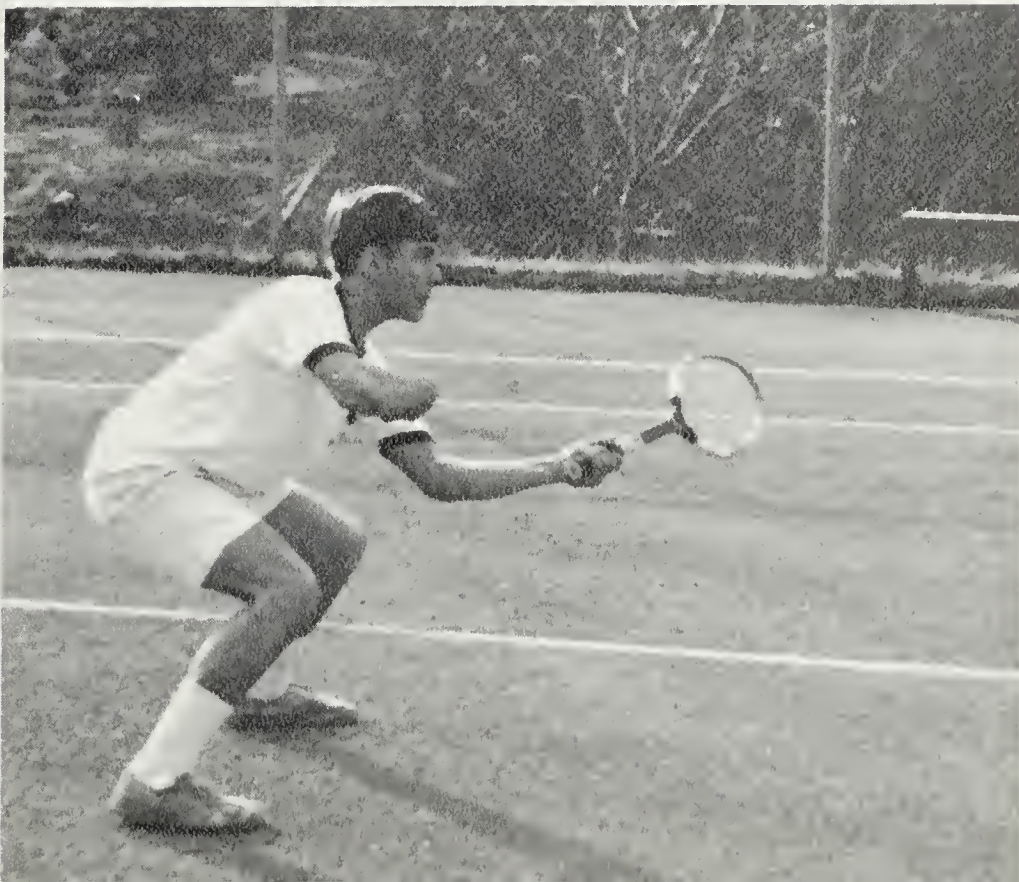

VARSITY TENNIS TEAM – FIRST ROW: B. Phillips, M. Jones, B. Reid, and P. Aultice. SECOND ROW: Mr. Brown, J. Jennings, M. Brennan, and M. Huddleston. THIRD ROW: G. Saunders, K. Campbell, K. Gaunt, and L. Mitchell.

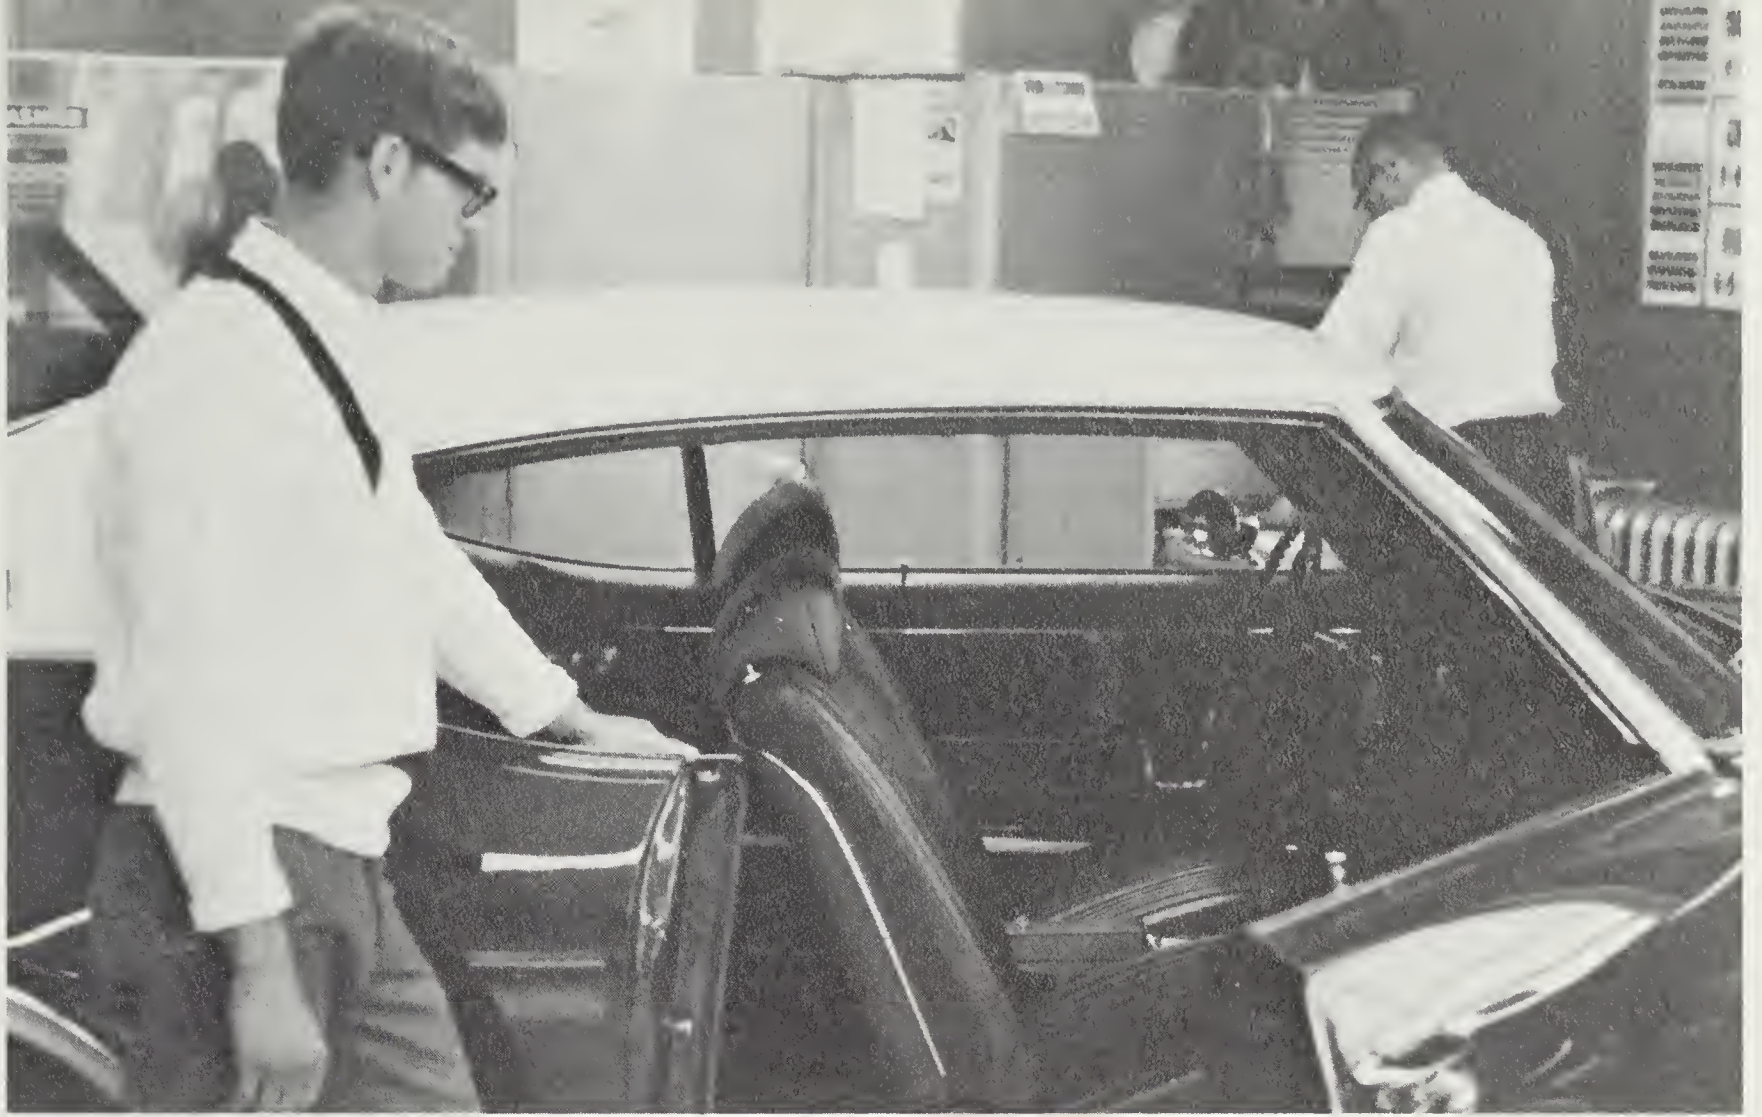

Mike Jones' left-handed serve is an asset to the tennis team.

Bobby Reid readies himself for a return at the net.

CONGRATULATIONS

to the new graduates

As parents, neighbors, and friends we naturally have a special interest in the quality of our schools.

No community is better than its schools, and no school is better than the determination and willingness of a community to support standards high enough and broad enough to meet tomorrow's levels of need, both vocationally and for citizenship.

To
Robin,

Best of luck to one of the sweetest girls I know. Remember 6th period. Be good this summer.
See you next year maybe in 9th grade science. HA!, HA!.

Love Ya!
Rachyl W.
Class of '73"

Best of Luck
to a real great friend,

Love Ya,

Ann

Good Luck to a nice girl!
Van R.

Best of luck to a real cool girl. May you go far in the future.
Have fun This summer
Billy

Robin,
Since I had
5 out of 6 classes with you, you are one of my best & greatest friends!
Kim

Robin,
To a great girl
who likes to fix
dog food sandwiches
for an unknown, unfortunate someone. Good luck with exams.
Mary Kay

Robin,
It's been great being in classes with you. Have a nice summer!
See ya,
Jicky

Best of Luck
to A real good friend.
Jerry

Don't ever stop giving 100%. You have been a joy to work with.
Keep plugging and you will go far.

G.P. Schaffer

To a great neighbor
and a great friend
Remember all the times in Phys. Ed. when we did exercises and then 10 laps around the
gym. Have a great summer and I see you will see during the summer so see ya.
Love,
Mary Beth

Robin,
This has been a great year with you! Please don't forget
L.H.S. Mr. Schaffer 6th period science and me. How could you forget me?
Debbie Cleary

Best of luck to a real good friend!
Susan Watson

Lots of luck to a good friend
Hope to see you this summer!

As Always,
Connie

Robin,
Best of luck in everything you do especially Latin. I hope you do well and if you ever get stuck, ask me, since I know everything about it! ^{Ha! Ha!}
and enjoy yourself. Be good this summer around. Don't forget Mrs. Campbell and maybe will be in the same geometry class next year. Well, I've said just about everything except that you're a real cute and sweet girl and so I'll say it now, you're a real cute and sweet girl. Love ya.

Robin,
It's been great knowing
you this year and I hope we have some classes together next year. Lots of luck always!
Love ya,
Janet Burnette

Good luck to you
this summer.
I hope you keep in touch and keep me up to date on
all the news.
Love ya,
Janet Burnette

Robin,
Best of luck in the future to a real sweet girl. You are a great and cute friend.
Don't forget all the "talking times" in homeroom. We had fun in homeroom this year and I hope we are in each other's classes next year, because we weren't in any this year. I hope to see you ~~there~~ ^{said before} this summer, some over at Dana's, at the baseball games this summer, and our to the pool. As I ~~said~~ ^{say} before good luck to a great friend and a cute girl. Take care and be good!! O.K.!!!
Love ya!
Mary
